Bandits Rob Man, Put Him to Sleep To Make Getaway

Collinston Citizen Kidnaped by Trio on Bastrop Highway

HYPODERMIC IS USED

C. Fontenot Sleeps Two Hours in Lonely Spot After Holdup

BASTROP, La., Aug. 26.—(AP)—A narcotic injection into the arm of their victim to induce sleep was the unique method used near here today by three men to make good their escape after kidnaping and robbing Clarence Fontenot, 28, of Collinston.

After two hours of deep sleep, Fontenot awakened in a wooded section about 100 yards off the Bastrop-Collinston highway, and walked to Bastrop to inform officers of his abduction and subsequent robbery.

Fontenot was robbed of $16, all the money he had with him. He told officers he was walking along the Bastrop-Mer Rouge highway when three men in a light coupe driving toward Bastrop stopped him, and at the point of a pistol forced him into their car.

Avoiding the main business streets of this city, the desperadoes' car went through Bastrop and stopped on a lonely spot about eight miles from here on the Collinston highway, Fontenot declared.

After robbing him, Fontenot said the three men led him into the woods about 100 yards off the road and one of the men took a hypodermic and a bottle out of what appeared to be a physician's handbag. Fontenot said one of the men then injected the hypodermic needle into his arm and shot several drops of the liquid into an artery.

"The man told me it wouldn't harm me but would put me to sleep while they made their getaway," Fontenot told Morehouse parish officers. "The fluid smelled something like ether and took immediate effect. I must have slept about two hours before waking up and walking into Bastrop."

A description of the three abductors was given parish officers and was wired to authorities in nearby cities and towns. The man who was driving the car was middle aged, about six feet tall and weighed about 160 pounds and had his face blackened with smut, Fontenot said.

The man who gave the hypodermic injection was dark complexioned and below average height. He appeared to weigh about 140 pounds. The third man was described as being of slender build, about 21 years of age and weighing 140 pounds.

CONTESTANTS ARE BUSY WITH VOTES

Boxes Are Placed in Newspaper Office to Receive Ballots

Contestants in the News-Star—World contest in which six all-expense, 10-day free trips to A Century of Progress exposition are to be awarded, are actively engaged in vote getting. In all there are 23 contestants, of which 16 are in district No. 1, the Monroe area, and seven in district No. 2, which comprises Bastrop.

Voting boxes have been placed on the counter in the News-Star—World ready to receive votes that can be placed in envelopes and deposited for the candidates. Several stores also have ballot boxes placed in convenient places for the receipt of votes.

Each cent of purchase in the stores which are entered in the contest, when cash is paid, is good for one vote. Receipts for amounts paid on account also may be voted and returned to the owner. The News-Star—World reserves the right to pass on the legitimacy of all votes cast.

The contest will close on October 15, and on October 16 the names of the winners will be made known through the News-Star and Morning World.

There are going to be some mighty happy people when the results are made known and not one cent will be required of the fortunate ones in seeing the biggest world's fair that has ever been held.

22 Persons Are Hurt When Pier Collapses

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Twenty-two persons were injured, none seriously, late today as a section of pier collapsed at Lighthouse Point, a bathing resort, and threw approximately 75 persons in the water. The crash occurred at the finish of a cross-harbor swimming race.

Harbor police dragged the water near the wreckage of the pier for bodies.

The collapse occurred, New Haven police said, after spectators who were watching the swimming race rushed to the end of the narrow pier, used as a ferry dock.

All the persons on the end of the pier were thrown into the water, 14 feet deep at that point.

NEW YORK WILL have a gigantic NRA parade, "bigger and better than the beer parade," probably 200,000 in line. A good idea, but parades, though beautiful, don't necessarily restore prosperity.

Louvois, French minister of war, studying a map with the great Turenne, put his finger on a place to cross a river. Turenne remarked dryly: "your finger is not a bridge." The confidential agent of Cardinal Richelieu, with his finger pointed on a map to several cities that the Cardinal expected Bernhard of Saxeweimar to capture. Louvois said; "cities are not taken with the finger."

Nevertheless, the great NRA parade will arouse enthusiasm, and that is what the country needs.

VERNON SCRUGGS AGAIN ARRESTED

Ex-Convict, Man and Woman Are Held for Theft of Gasoline

Five persons were arrested and placed in the parish jail Saturday on charges ranging from shooting with intent to kill to theft of gasoline.

Among those arrested was Vernon Scruggs of Brownville, who was once sentenced to hang, after being charged with criminal assault and murder. The death penalty later was commuted to life imprisonment. Several months ago Scruggs received a full pardon from Gov. O. K. Allen.

Scruggs, R. H. Tyler, Jr. and Mae Broussard were taken into custody on charges of stealing gasoline and automobile tires. The woman and Scruggs were captured by members of the sheriff's department after a chase, which ended when the car driven by the woman collided with a tree. She told officers she was trying to get away from them because she had a half gallon of whisky in the car. Officers found in the car a number of packages of cigarettes which they believed might have been stolen.

Almus Reed, negro, was transferred to the parish jail, after being arrested by members of the West Monroe police department on a charge of shooting with intent to kill. He was said to have shot King Agee, negro, Friday night. The shooting occurred on I. C. avenue, back of the Red Line filling station, on the Jonesboro road, near the Illinois Central crossing. Reed told officers he shot Agee, who lived next door to him, because he had created disturbances several times and had refused to pay any attention to his warnings not to do so again.

The fifth person to be arrested was W. C. Sammons, who was taken into custody by the sheriff's department on a peace warrant.

Irene Jones, negro woman, who was locked up on August 9 for throwing boiling starch on Martha Johnson, negro woman, was released on bond.

Miss Ama Lee Null Is Hurt in Auto Accident

Miss Ama Lee Null, instructor in French at the junior college here last year, sustained a fractured hip and pelvis bone, together with other injuries in an auto wreck near Edmund, Okla., according to word just received here.

It was stated that she was driving a car when another auto proceeding on the wrong side of the road crashed into her car.

Although seriously injured, Miss Null has sent word that she will come to Monroe later in the fall to resume her duties in the northeast center of Louisiana State university.

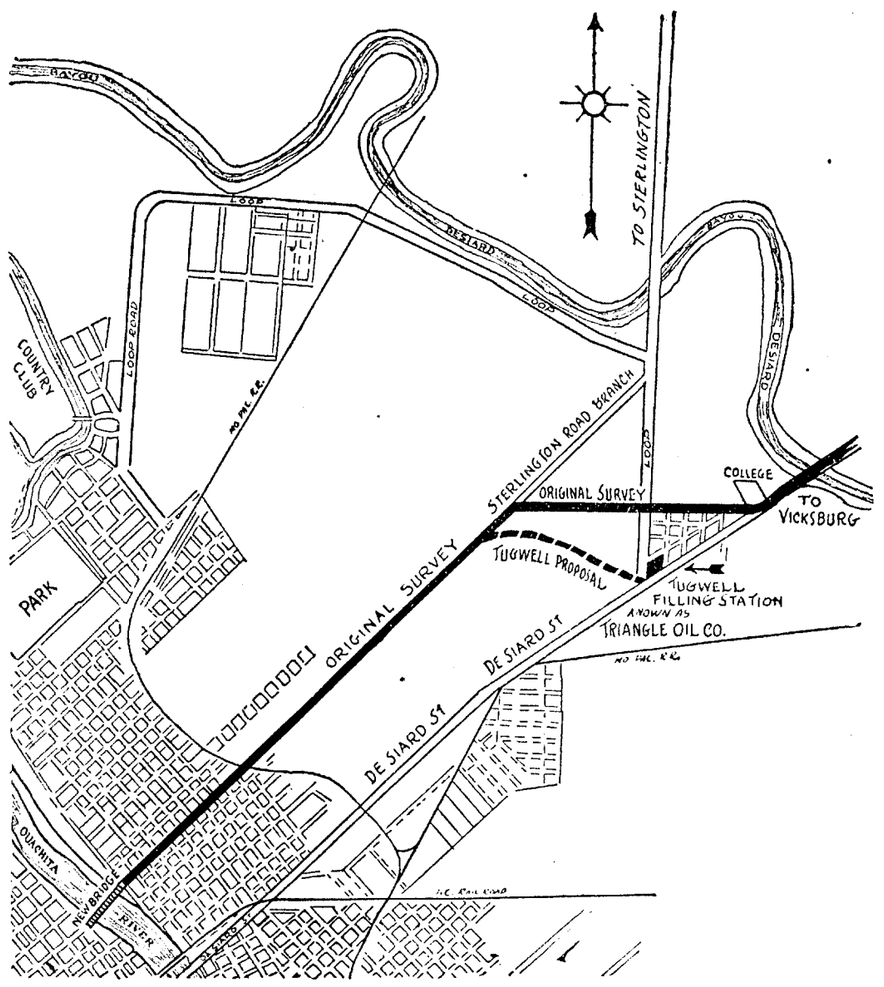
Father Is Arrested for Beating Deaf-Mute Child

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Frank Krohn, 39, was arrested by police today and charged with beating his 17-year-old daughter, Dorothy, a deaf mute.

The girl complained to police, showing welts on her back which she indicated were administered by her father with a strap.

Police quoted the father as saying he whipped the girl after she had had an altercation with her stepmother, who also is 17 years old.

TWO SURVEYS REVEAL CURIOUS SITUATION



The above diagram shows two surveys of proposed routes to connect the extension of Louisville avenue with DeSiard road, in order to permit direct access to the new traffic bridge over the Ouachita river. The original survey provided for a right of way acceptable to property owners, joining the two highways by a link projected along dedicated street lines to the junior college corner. This route was rejected by Chairman Tugwell of the state highway commission, who authorized another survey, which involves construction of a "turtle-back" curve, ignoring street lines of platted property. This second survey would bring the connecting link between the two highways out at a corner of DeSiard road and the Sterlington-Bastrop highway, where is located a filling station owned by Chairman Tugwell.

Strange Delay in Approving Route For Louisville Avenue Extension

ROOSEVELT SAYS NRA IS SUCCESS

Declares That 'Downhill Drift Has Definitely Turned'

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Aug. 26.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today declared the national recovery drive for more jobs and more pay to be succeeding with a unanimity of the people, "unequalled since the war-days" bringing the country "back to better times."

In the bright sun on the Vassar college campus the president told the people of his home county who gathered to welcome him home that "the downhill drift has definitely turned and become an upward surge."

Speaking publicly on the recovery drive for the first time since his intensive days at the White House in inaugurating the new deal for America, Mr. Roosevelt put emphasis into his words declaring the new policy to be one extending to the nation the principle of "local community—that no individual, no family, has a right to do things which hurt the neighbors."

The president wiped beads of perspiration from his forehead and looked his old neighbors of this Republican county in the face as he also called for a complete reorganization of local government.

"Some day the people of the state of New York will do something about it," he said, "but I tell you quite frankly that nothing will be done unless you make your representatives in town boards and county boards and

Alexandria Man Robbed Near Monroe Last Night

Held up at the point of a pistol by a lone bandit, E. P. Bardelon of Alexandria, was robbed of $28 in cash and his automobile about 9:30 Saturday night, he reported to police headquarters. The robbery occurred on the Loop road near the Hardtimes plantation.

Bardelon said that after the man had placed the point of a pistol in his face and had forced him to give him all the money he had, he was forced by the bandit to get out of the car. The man told Bardelon he would leave the car parked at a certain place in Monroe and he could get it later, but the car had not been found. It was described as being a 1932 model Ford coupe, painted blue and trimmed in black. The initials "E. P. B." were said to have been painted in gold on each door.

After he had been forced out of his car, Bardelon succeeded in catching a ride to Monroe with a passing motorist.

Commission Chairman Interested In Filling Station On Highway

A change made without notice in the routing of an important urban highway link in the city of Monroe is provoking speculation and resentment among right-of-way holders affected by the shift.

All of the circumstances are so unusual that they amount, in the opinion of many of those familiar with the facts, to a misdirection of public tax funds.

As originally surveyed by federal engineers and approved by the Louisiana highway commission, the proposed link intersected the Dixie-Overland highway at the site of the Monroe junior college, several blocks east of the Triangle filling station, owned by Chairman A. P. Tugwell, of the Louisiana road body. As a substitute for that portion of the link extending from Louisville avenue to DeSiard road (Dixie-Overland highway) a sort of turtle-back or reverse stretch has been surveyed. This new route intersects the east and west highway at Island road, at a point where the Triangle filling station stands.

DeSiard street is the main business artery of Monroe. The old traffic bridge over Ouachita river, now in use, gives agress to the thoroughfare, which runs east and west and, for its entire length, is part of the Dixie-Overland route. When it leaves the city limits on the east, DeSiard street becomes DeSiard road.

BIG NRA MEETING SCHEDULED HERE

Program Being Arranged to Aid in Carrying Out Recovery Act

A mass meeting for citizens of Monroe, West Monroe and Ouachita parish for the purpose of giving impetus to the national recovery program will be held at Neville high school within the near future, according to announcement Saturday. Several outstanding speakers will be invited to appear. Among this number will be Congressmen Riley J. Wilson and Cleveland Dear.

This plan was decided upon Friday night at a joint meeting of the two NRA committees of Ouachita parish held in the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce. A. V. Miller, chairman of the committee for the area east of the Ouachita river, presided.

In addition to the big mass meeting, it was decided to have men and women make a house-to-house canvass to explain to the people of Monroe and West Monroe what the blue

Youth Takes Grandfather's Secreted Gold, Buys Wagon

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Elra Thatch, 11, arrived in Los Angeles from his grandfather's home in Springdale, Ark., bringing with him a little red wagon, an electric malted milk shaker and a story about finding $500 in gold buried in a glass jar in his grandfather's cellar.

A bicycle caught his fancy here and Elra dug two gold pieces from his knitted stocking capital to buy it. The store clerk became suspicious and while Elra was reciting his story of adventure the cops arrived.

The boy spent last night in the juvenile jail, while police wired his grandfather, Andrew Roberts. Elra said he found the glass jar containing the gold buried in the basement and he then headed westward about two weeks ago.

"I never could get enough malted milks down on the farm," he explained, "so I bought this malted milk mixer on the way out."

At Kansas City, he said, he puchased "city boy clothes," bought the red wagon, a baseball and some toy automobiles. Railroad fare, meals and his purchases left him $395 in gold.

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Andrew J. Roberts, 75, whose grandson, Elra Thatch, 11, was detained by Los Angeles police after he said he had found $500 in gold buried in his grandfather's cellar, told Sheriff Harley Gover today his loss would total $1,000. Roberts said he would not prosecute his grandson.

Thatch's mother, who made her home on Robert's small fruit farm northeast of here, left several days before the boy's departure, Roberts said. He made a search in nearby towns but failed to find trace of her. Roberts said she also may be in California.

The $1,000 in gold represented his life savings, Roberts said. He told officers he never kept funds in a bank but was planning to place the money in a lock box when he discovered it was gone.

Texas Voters Favor Repeal By Majority of Two to One On Basis of Early Returns

COAL, CAR CODES ARE PRESSED BY ADMINISTRATION

Troublesome Labor Question Is Placed in President's Hands

MASTER PLAN IS SEEN

All Retailers May Be Placed Under Huge Single Agreement

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—(AP)—The troublesome question of whether the NRA code for the automobile industry shall include the provision of the manufacturers that employes be advanced without regard to union or non-union affiliation tonight was up to President Roosevelt for decision.

After hours of conferences, with spokesmen for organized labor refusing to retreat from their opposition to any statement regarding the organization of labor beyond that contained in the recovery act, a tentative code was transmitted to the chief executive by Hugh S. Johnson, the administrator.

An early reply was expected and if Mr. Roosevelt approves the wording the code will be ready for his signature.

The furore centered about the controverted section 7 of the act providing collective bargaining for workers without interference from employers as to the type of organization they chose. The wording of the new section which the manufacturers are demanding and which Johnson and Donald R. Richberg, the NRA counsel, have approved provides specifically that "no attempt is being made to qualify" the law but that the industry intends to hire, discharge or promote workers upon a basis of merit without regard to union or non-union affiliation.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and the labor adviser to Johnson on the code, opposed this section, contending the law was clear, but when asked whether the code would be acceptable if the board's recommendation was rejected, said:

"It isn't a question of whether it is acceptable. We will have to abide by it."

Upon President Roosevelt then was placed the decision as to his views, which are expected to settle once and for all the labor provisions of codes.

INSULL DETAINED IN NURSING HOME

Escapes Jail Because of Poor Condition of His Health

ATHENS, Greece, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Samuel Insull, former head of the vast Insull utilities interests, was detained in a nursing home today as the United States got under way a second fight to extradite him.

Insull was taken first to the office of the chief of the Athens police. His attorneys immediately contended that he should not suffer jail confinement because of the state of his health and his age. (He is almost 74).

Physicians examined him and it was on their recommendation that he was taken to the Logothetopoulos clinic.

A difference of opinion arose between Greek an American authorities concerning the right of the Greek government to go into the substance of the case against Insull before passing on the application for extradition.

"The detention is preventive," said a statement issued by Minister of Justice Taliadouros, "pending the arrival of documents to be furnished by the American legation, on the basis of which a decision will be reached as to whether Mr. Insull should be extradited or not."

Forest Harness, representative of the office of the United States attorney-general, said he doubted whether the Greek government had the right to examine into the substance of the

ROGERS HAS HIS SAY

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Aug. 26.—California has a murder trial on out here now (some professor is supposed to have killed his wife), so you all know when your home town papers can scare up a good murder trial, why that's just like striking pay dirt. So I don't know what Hugh Johnson is doing with the auto code, how Secretary Wallace of agriculture is making out trying to keep pigs from growing up, what Cordell Hull is doing toward making international conferences useful as well as decorative. What Secretary of Labor Miss Perkins is doing to see that everything in the NRA is not unionized, or is unionized, or whatever they decide to do with it. As I say, we got a murder trial and we don't know a thing in the world that is happening outside of that, so pardon my ignorance.

3 BANK CARRIERS BLINDED, ROBBED

$36,000 Taken by Pair as They Shoot Tear Gas Into Auto

DENVER, Colo., Aug. 26.—(U.P.)—Two daring bandits today blinded three messengers of the U. S. National bank with tear gas, snatched a black bag containing $36,000 in crisp new currency, and sped away in a small coupe through the heavy traffic of a busy downtown street.

The robbery, the most daring since that of the U. S. mint more than 10 years ago, in which $200,000 was taken, occurred as the three bank messengers were en route in a small coupe from the federal reserve branch bank to the U. S. National bank.

Richard Boden, driver of the messengers' machine, was threading his way through the traffic. Suddenly in front of him loomed a big truck, which apparently was stalled.

Boden started to back up his car to get around, when a dark coupe bearing two men pulled up along side of him. A moment later the bandits jumped out and one of them shouted:

"Let 'em have it."

The other snatched a fountain-pen tear gas gun from his pocket and shot the fumes into the messengers' automobile.

As the blinded messengers fought their way out of the car, the bandits snatched the satchel, jumped into

General Mario Menocal Will Seek Presidency

NASSAU, N. P., Aug. 26.—(AP)—As quietly as he fled Cuba by airplane following the overthrow of his government two weeks ago, Gerardo Machado, exiled former president of the island republic, boarded the steamship Lady Rodney this afternoon to seek a new refuge in Canada.

Startled by a message a few days ago that his wife was in danger, Machado has been closely guarded. Before his steamer reached her anchorage late today, Machado and his party, accompanied by police guards, entered a closed automobile and drove to the harbor.

Walking the hundred yards length of the pier, the party entered a tug which took them and port officials out to where the steamer lay near Hog island, a mile from Nassau. The police officials, among them Inspector Pemberton, remained aboard until the ship sailed.

'Sleeping Sickness' May Delay Opening of Schools

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Thousands of children in the suburban districts of this city may not be able to return to school on schedule this fall because of the serious epidemic of "sleeping sickness" which has taken thirty-one lives in this vicinity in less than a month.

The metropolitan health council of St. Louis last night asked health officers in each community affected by the outbreak to advise whether their schools should open September 5.

During the last twenty-four hours, additional deaths were reported, while twenty-five new cases brought the total to 243.

The disease has now been reported from coast to coast. A woman in Jacksonville, Fla., is suffering from encephalitis, while a death in California has been reported. Other deaths have been reported in Kansas, Oklahoma, Iowa and Mississippi.

Home Town of Senator Morris Sheppard Goes Against Prohibition

DALLAS, Texas, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Texas, on the basis of incomplete returns, voted approximately 2 to 1 today for repeal of the 18th amendment.

Returns from rural districts, slow to be counted, late tonight reduced an earlier margin of more than 3 to 1 for the ratification proposal already approved by 22 states.

A tabulation of returns from 116 of the state's 254 counties showed 70,875 votes for repeal and 35,287 against the proposal.

TEXARKANA, Texas, Aug. 26.—(AP)—The home town of Senator Morris Sheppard, staunch dry leader and co-author of the 18th amendment, voted for repeal by a margin of 302 ballots in today's election.

In the same number of counties the Texas election bureau reported 70,162 votes for a proposal to amend the state constitution to legalize 3.2 per cent beer, with 35,287 against.

A measure to authorize a state bond issue of $20,000,000 for relief purposes apparently had carried overwhelmingly.

Senator Morris Sheppard, in addresses, had urged Texans to "drive the first of the 13 nails necessary in the lid of John Barleycorn's coffin."

The approval of 36 states is necessary to kill the prohibition amendment. Washington, voting next Tuesday, will follow Texas in expressing its sentiment. Elections have been arranged in a sufficient number of other states to ratify repeal this year, should

BITTERMAN'S LIFE THOUGHT IN PERIL

Kidnap Victim Not Rich; Abductors May Put Him to Death

DENVER, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Fears for the life of Bernard Bitterman, young Denver department store executive, kidnaped Thursday night, were expressed today by Ira C. Rothgerber, attorney for the Bitterman family.

The attorney said his apprehension was based on the fact that the adbuctors have made no attempt to communicate with anyone since a note, mailed at Cheyenne, Wyo., was received yesterday by Alfred Triefus, general manager of the May company Denver department store.

The note read: "Don't worry, your nephew is O. K. await further instructions. You'll hear from us later. NRA."

Triefus is not a relative of Bitterman's and the Bitterman family is not related to Davis May, founder of the May Company.

Police and department of justice agents theorize that Bitterman was kidnaped by persons who believe he

Five Persons Beheaded In Germany Yesterday

BERLIN, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Five persons in various parts of Germany were decapitated at dawn today, making a total of 31 executions by the guillotine or the headman's axe under the Hitler government.

At Gorgau a widow, Emma Thieme, who had secured two men to kill her own son, was beheaded along with the two men. The executioner, in accordance with German custom, was clad in evening clothes and top hat. He cut off each head with one blow of his axe in the presence of a dozen witnesses.

In Butzbach, Essen, and Schweidnitz, Silesia, two persons were put to death, one for a political and the other for an ordinary criminal murder.

Woman Is Arrested for Trying to Shoot Hubby

Accused of shooting at her husband with a rifle, Mrs. N. B. Bernadac was arrested at 8:55 Saturday night by members of the police department. As her husband escaped injury, she was booked at police headquarters on a charge of discharging a fire-arm inside the city limits.

Mrs. Bernadac was detained at police headquarters for some time after the shooting, but about an hour after she had been arrested her husband appeared and provided bond of $30 and she was released. The two left the police station together without exchanging a word after bond had been provided.

LOUISVILLE AVE. EVOKES QUESTION

bridge across the Ouachita in the northern end of Monroe, with its eastern approaches at Louisville avenue, was designed, among other things, to relieve some of the congestion on DeSiard street, by opening up a new east and west route. In arranging for highway service from the eastern end of the new bridge to a point of intersection with the Dixie-Overland route, it was necessary to provide for the extension of Louisville avenue.

In providing for this route there were two points to be considered: first, relieving DeSiard street traffic and, second, the best interests of the general traffic, tourist and local. To achieve these two purposes the original route, now about to be abandoned, it seems, is declared to have been infinitely preferable. The chief object of the new link being to keep interurban traffic off of DeSiard street and road, attainment was necessarily nearer from four to six blocks east of the terminus of the turtle-back substitute. Again, the city got a greater clearance from the general traffic under the old plan, a point of advantage to both.

Rights-of-way were secured for the old route without difficulty, under instructions given by Engineer McCullough, head of the right-of-way department of the highway commission. There was practically no opposition to this survey from property holders.

But, the new route is said to be a different matter. If the highway commission insists upon a route which intersects the Dixie-Overland at the site of Mr. Tugwell's filling station, it is going to have to expropriate some property to get necessary rights-of-way. In some instances the property holders who parted with rights-of-way for the old route and refuse to part with them for the new are the same.

The old route, as shown by surveys on file at Monroe and Baton Rouge, passed eastward out Louisville avenue, turning southeast and slicing a corner of a large tract owned by John Potts, a well known Monroe attorney, passing to DeSiard road (Dixie-Overland) through Armond street, a north and south suburban thoroughfare. There was a small fraternity house n the way and the commission agreed to purchase another lot and move the house to a new site. As before stated, connection was to be made with DeSiard road at the site of the junior college, at the extreme east of Monroe.

The new route surveyed by highway engineers almost bisects the tract of Mr. Potts and goes through the center of a large area owned by the A. & L. M. railroad, which the old route did not touch at all. Both Mr. Potts and officials of the railroad are said to be strongly against the new link, and opposed to any rights-of-way concessions to insure its use.

"The whole transaction is very remarkable," one of the large property-holders affected by the situation said recently, "It can be explained on no other theory that I can discover except the enhancement of private interests.

"The original survey was made by federal engineers, as the link is part of a federal aid project. It is my impression that it was approved by the Louisiana commission. But, in any event, Engineer McCullough, head of that body's right-of-way department, came here to secure rights-of-way. He went over the ground with Mr. Robert Breard, well known realtor and one of the affected property owners. Convinced after mature observation that Mr. Breard knew the situation, approved the original route and could be trusted to obtain necessary rights-of-way, Mr. McCullough instructed him to proceed with the work of securing them.

"The rights-of-way were promptly gotten in this way; and in one instance, a property holder, Mr. John Potts, actually transmitted a deed to Baton Rouge. He has since tried unsuccessfully to secure the return of this deed. In another instance, a survey costing $100 had to be made, and the commission authorized it. Finally, all things were done to perfect the linking up of Louisville avenue with DeSiard road, at the Junior college.

"Several weeks ago, entering unexpectedly upon a tract of land pierced by the new route, Mr. Robert Breard found surveyors at work there. He asked them what they were doing there and was informed that the highway commission was using them to establish a new route from Louisville avenue to DeSiard road. The surveyors had not asked nor obtained permission to enter upon the land. Nevertheless, Mr. Breard permitted them to continue their work with the understanding that when it was completed they would trace the new route on a city map in his office. They did so; and the route was that which intersects the DeSiard road (Dixie-Overland highway) at the Tugwell filling station. A similar tracing is on file in the office of the parish engineer, in the Ouachita parish courthouse.

"The fact that Mr. Tugwell has listed the extension of Louisville avenue among the projects to be immediately cared for under the federal reconstruction loan plan, makes the question of route of instant importance. Nevertheless, there is going to be a fight over rights-of-way for the new survey, whereas the rights-of-way for the old stretch were gladly parted with. It is no stretch of language to say that the natural rights of property holders are being imperiled to benefit other private interests. No other conclusion is tenable.

"The original survey was infinitely the best for the general traffic and infinitely the best for Monroe. There is a small toll after sundown over the existing traffic bridge. The new bridge will be entirely toll-free. It stretches far to the north of the present span and all through traffic will naturally be routed over it. This traffic now goes over the old bridge, through DeSiard street and past the Triangle filling station. If the original route intersecting Dixie-Overland at the Junior college were retained, the station would not be on the pathway of east and west travel. But, the new survey keeps it there."

The proposed extension of Louisville avenue is also to be connected up with the Sterlington highway, extending northeast, whether the old or new route is finally accepted. It branches off in that direction, giving the west a sort of forked connection with the northeast and east.

The attitude of the Ouachita parish authorities is said to be that they want the road. They are, therefore, trying to straighten out the difficulties that lie in the way of consummation; but, thus far, without success. From every public viewpoint except that of road expediency, the original route is favored. And, since it offers every advantage, the people of Monroe and particularly the affected property owners, can see no reason why it should not be followed.

FOLK SCHOOL IS BROUGHT TO END

Annual Richland Parish Event Is Marked by Good Attendance

Marked by an attendance which reached approximately 3,000 on the final day, the fourth Richland Parish Folk school, which opened in Rayville last Monday, was brought to a close Friday afternoon. All sessions of the school were held in the afternoon from two to five, and the two buildings of the Richland parish high school were used for the classes.

Among those from Monroe who took part in the school this year were Dr. Ralph Talbot, who assisted in giving physical examinations in the baby clinic, which for the third year formed an important part in the work of the school; Mrs. H. M. James, president of the Monroe Sketch club, and Adrian Brewer of the Southern Art league, who has been located in Monroe the latter part of the summer, both of whom assisted in the work of the fine arts department. A number of persons from Monroe were daily visitors to the school.

A variety of interests, ranging from the purely practical, as illustrated in handicrafts which put to use materials at hand, to the more specifically educational and recreational projects, such as reading, playground activities, and dramatics, claimed the attention of attendants. In addition to the instructional work, there were exhibits of the work of certain community groups and classes during the year, and lectures and demonstrations by men and women from Louisiana and without the state, prominent in their respective fields.

In the matter of attendance, as members of the directing board pointed out, it was a case of "the whole family going to school," those present ranging in age from the very small tots who spent the afternoons in the nursery school or, for part of the time, in the baby clinic, to grandfathers and grandmothers who became students once more or else took their places as teachers to give to others some of the homely wisdom which had accrued to them through years of experience and work.

Final events of the school which claimed special attention were a pageant depicting the use and importance of cotton, given before an audience of about 1,000 who crowded to capacity the high school auditorium, and a baseball game between the "Fats" and the "Leans," the former led by Judge Carey Ellis and the latter captained by W. D. Cotton. Before a group of enthusiastic and cheering spectators, the "Leans" came from behind to emerge the victors in the closing minutes of the contest, the final score being 8 to 7.

Commenting on comparative attendance figures of the folk school, Julius O'Quin, chairman of the school's board of directors, said: "Though the average daily attendance this year was not as large as last year's, this was in no way due to a flagging of interest in the work of the school. In fact, interest in the work, which may be explained as the outgrowth of community needs and ambitions, is perhaps greater now than it has ever been. Decrease in attendance figures this year resulted from our lack of transportation facilities. In many cases, children who had gathered at some central community meeting place or had come to the roadside, hoping to find a place in the buses, had to be left, sometimes crying, because there was not sufficient room to bring them in."

Mr. O'Quin stated that the board hopes to make arrangements for additional transportation facilities next year.

Members of the board, in addition to Mr. O'Quin, are Miss Robbie Binion, secretary-treasurer; H. A. Mangham, first vice president and chairman of publicity; Mrs. Floy McKay, chairman of programs; Dr. C. C. Thompson, chairman of finance; Mrs. C. J. Ellis, recreation chairman; Miss LaVelle Calhoun and Miss Pearl LeFevre, home improvement; Mrs. M. F. Hanna, vocational guidance; Mrs. Marshall Hanna, health department; Mrs. John C. Calhoun, arts; G. D. Cain, agriculture; J. K. Gladney, assistant chairman of agriculture, and John M. Ferguson, attendance.

A number of men and women from educational institutions in the state assisted this year as heretofore in the school programs. These included, from the Louisiana State university, Dr. Frank O. Kreager of the university general extension division, as a result of whose work the school was undertaken; J. W. Bateman, F. W. Spencer, W. T. Cobb, Miss Ellen LeNoir, Mrs. Mary M. Johnson and M. M. LaCroix of the agricultural extension division; B. H. Singletary of the department of horticulture; Dean Fred C. Frey of the college of arts and science and head of the department of sociology; Dr. Giles W. Gray of the speech department and John Paul, senior in this department. From the Louisiana State Normal college was Miss Isabel Levy, who, directors commented, contributed much to the success of the school's recreational work in her direction of folk dancing.

Dean Mitchell of Louisiana Polytechnic institute, and George Lomax, architect, both of Ruston, had charge of the manual training department of the boys' handicraft division. Articles made in this division, which attracted special attention from attendants and visitors, included a number of decorative pieces for bedrooms, porches, and living rooms. Combination radio tables and magazine racks, wall bookcases, footstools, and bric-a-brac racks, all attractively finished in dainty pastel tints were included in the articles made by the boys. There were many would-be purchasers among the callers in this department, but the youthful furniture-makers to a boy preferred to "take them home."

The board of directors stated that they were especially grateful to many commercial concerns of the parish who had aided by the contribution of materials, labor and transportation in making the school a success.

Parish projects for the 1933-34 session will be untertaken early in September.

Remember "Custer's Last Stand"? How General Custer and 207 comrades were surrounded by Indians at the Battle of Little Big Horn, Montana, nearly fifty-seven years ago, and how they were killed to the last man. That's history.

And today, this history again comes to the front: General Custer's widow, who lived to be 91, died recently. And she leaves a very historic will.

She bequeaths to the United States Government "the two flags of truce, one made of a white towel, and the other of a white handkerchief, which were used on the occasion of the surrender of General Lee at Appomatox, and also a table on which the surrender of Lee was written."

To the U. S. Military Academy at West Point she leaves "a button owned by me and said to be cut from one of the coats of George Washington."

She named the City Farmers Trust Co. of New York as executor, with instructions to erect on the battlefield in Montana a museum in which shall be placed all the many souvenirs of General Custer and herself.

How Man's Opinion Is Affected . . . . .

Since the days of the fig-leaf, man's dress has had a bearing on his morals and, consequently, on history itself. Research among the annals of fashion reveals the fact that man is a vain animal, prone to have his opinions swayed by his own garb and that of his contemporaries.

This swaying of man's opinion enters into every phase of his life. In business, it is affected by the stationery he encounters, the printed matter that lies upon his desk. He is drawn by clean clear type; repulsed by poor layout and unrelated type faces.

You should select your printer carefully, for he is as important as your barber, your tailor or your haberdasher.

HIKE EXPECTED IN PRICES OF BREAD

Increase Is Anticipated as Result of New Wheat Agreement

LONDON, Aug. 26. — (AP) — An increase in bread's price was anticipated generally by British Isles consumers today as one of the first important reactions to the new international wheat agreement.

This question is of particular interest in Great Britain where wheat bread forms a large part of the diet of wage earners but an immediate rise in bread prices was not expected.

Wheat options in London rose the equivalent of about 1.5 U. S. cents gold (2.18 cents at today's rate of exchange) per bushel on the strength of the agreement signed last night by 21 nations.

Liverpool prices increased the equivalent, at today's exchange rate, of 2.61 to 3.04 cents a bushel.

Premier R. B. Bennett of Canada, chairman of the international wheat conference which began its sessions here last Monday to complete the work initiated at Geneva in May, declared he was "eminently" satisfied with the result as he started for Southampton to take a boat home.

The parley made the "greatest single move which could have been achieved for the restoration of world prosperity" in which the opinion of Frederick E. Murphy, one of the American delegates.

The pact set 63.08 United States cents gold (91 cents off gold in today's exchange) a bushel as the price which will decide when importing countries are to lower their wheat tariffs. The importers agree to cut their duties against wheat once this price has been maintained four months.

Another important feature is that the big four exporters—the United States, Argentina, Australia and Canada—agree to reduce production in 1934-1935 by 15 per cent. Exports would also be restricted by all nations which send wheat abroad.

Argentina was not represented at last night's meeting but its signature is to be affixed to the pact on Monday. Eight small European nations which did not sign, it was hoped, will join in the agreement later.

Comment in British newspapers was generally enthusiastic. The Manchester Guardian expressed admiration and surprise over the fact that an agreement had been reached at all.

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—(AP)—American grain markets generally showed little enthusiasm over the agreement reached at the London international wheat conference.

Traders in the leading grain futures market of the world were far more interested in the expansion of credit program announced by the federal reserve system almost simultaneously.

Announcement that an agreement had been reached in London was received in Chicago before the opening Friday morning, but the first advices were uncertain and confusing. As a result when wheat opened three cents a bushel higher some credit for the advance was quickly passed to the London pact, but most traders said that the bullishness was due more to possibility of inflation than to the pact.

Signing of the proposed agreement, limiting wheat exports to 560,000,000 bushels and imposing a 15 per cent acreage reduction on acquiescing nations, was hailed with joy in Liverpool today where wheat prices ran up around three cents a bushel. This was an advance of about two cents a bushel more than was expected by Chicago traders.

An early advance of two cents in Chicago wheat was attributed generally to this unexpected upswing in the British market.

Not a single Chicago statistician or economist has as yet issued an opinion on the provisions of the London agreement.

B. B. MARTIN TO MODERNIZE STORE

Grocery at Fourth and Stubbs to Be Model Food Palace

B. B. Martin, proprietor of the Sur-Wa stores, Saturday announced plans for converting his store at North Fourth street and Stubbs avenue into a model food palace. Mr. Martin has just returned from trips to Little Rock, New Orleans and Shreveport, where he studied the most up-to-date food shops. He plans to make the store here the equal of any he saw in any of these cities insofar as smartness and convenience are concerned.

When completed the store will include a modern bakery, meat market and delicatessen. Floor space in the building will be increased approximately 50 per cent and there will be a novelty canopy all the way across the front. The canopy will be 16 feet high and will be arranged in such a manner that shoppers will be able to drive their automobiles onto the pavement and under the canopy and thus be able to leave their cars and enter the store without getting wet when it is raining.

In attractiveness and ultra-modern style, Mr. Martin hopes to make his store exceed even those he saw on his visits to the larger cities. The front will be unique in that it will be constructed of tinted glass. Added attractiveness on the inside arrangement also is planned.

Work on improvements to the store will start within about 10 days, Mr. Martin said, and it is hoped construction will be completed by October 1.

Mr. Martin stated in connection with the improvement of this store that he plans to cut down on the number of stores in operation and to improve those remaining. He believes in this way he will be able to care for the needs of customers more efficiently and to give better service.

A Home Beside the River

A reader sends us this account of a personal experience, and asks us to "point a moral":

"Recently while in a neighboring city, I dropped in to see an old friend of mine with whom I have had little contact for years. I found him ideally situated. His financial condition, even in these times of depression, is so sound that he has all the money he needs. He has retired and he and his wife have nothing to do but enjoy themselves. He has a delightful home. The house is handsome, artistically furnished; the grounds which slope to a broad river are adorned with fine trees, shrubs and flowers.

"On the surface things look fine for my friend and his wife; almost anybody these days and times would envy them. Most persons would gladly change places with them.

"Wait a minute. Through that handsome home there stalks a grim, grizzly specter whose presence makes my friend and his wife forget much of the time if not most of the time, everything but the presence of the specter. For my friend has an affliction that may carry him off at any moment. He never knows when the blow will fall. Every now and then there is some physical sign that the time has arrived; then there comes a reprieve. Nature again wins out temporarily.

"How many loving families living in humble homes and working hard to acquire enough of this world's goods to keep body and soul together, would, if they knew all the circumstances, trade places with my friend and his wife?"

Some would. Some are so distressed by financial pressure that they would be willing to pay almost any price for relief. Waiting for disaster to overtake us is wearing and sickening, unless we are able to arise above the affairs of this world and regard them as just what they are—conditions that will and must pass. There is nothing permanent here. There is nothing here that is intended to be permanent, and everybody has his troubles to meet.

We see somebody we envy. If we could look into his heart we might immediately cease envying him; we might shudder and raise a prayer of thankfulness that we were not he.

A thing that should give us pain is to see men lying, stealing and grafting, to see human beings made in the image and likeness of God squealing and fighting for possession of this and that, like hogs in a trough, entirely overlooking the fact that big, important neglected things are demanding attention, and that the decent honorable way produces better results for all concerned than any other way.

It is when we reach the point where we reach the stern outcome of it all, that we sober down and realize what it is all about. It would seem that all of us would have sense enough to realize that we are dependent on one another and that we must work decently together, that we must set up a system of reciprocal protection, that we all need to be boosted along through life, for we cannot make the grade alone. Grief that no human hand can prevent must inevitably descend on us. Why, then, should our human hands pile up grief that is wholly unnecessary, merely to get something or other that will surely fail us should we try to lean on it in our darkest hours?

When we come to cast up our accounts and face the grim situations that all of us must eventually face, there is just one thing that is going to give us genuine satisfaction no matter what our station in life, and that is the realization that in our dealings with one another, we have been all round, fair and square.

Each of us has a home by a river—a river that some day each must cross alone, except for his deeds.

Rheumatism may have been Nature's first primitive effort to establish a weather bureau.

Human nature is the same at all ages. A baby's first yell means "gimme."

Lie: A conception seven parts imagination, and three parts yellow streak.

Naughtiness is not more prevalent than of yore. It is just less sneaking.

More Truth Than Poetry

By JAMES A. MONTAGUE

LINES BY A REACTIONARY

When science takes charge of your diet,
As I learn that it must, before long,
When a capsule of rice
Twice a day will suffice
To keep a man husky and strong,
You will save many valuable hours
And equally valuable time;
You won't need to brood
On the high cost of food;
You can board for a day on a dime.

No more need you waste half an evening
Consuming beefsteak and squash pie;
You may dine when you will
On a single small pill,
Which your needs will completely supply.
The time that you ruthlessly squander
Whenever you sit down to dine
If devoted to thought
And to scholarship, ought
To make the old intellect shine

As for me, with a future behind me,
I shall stick by the old-fashioned chow
An addict I am
To beef, mutton and ham
And I'll not bid farewell to them now.
I shall not nibble pills nor chew capsules,
But, while there remains a supply
Of food fit to eat
I shall sit in my seat
And call for roast duck and mince pie

FOREGONE CONCLUSION

Sooner or later somebody is sure to find that the Brain Trust is a combination in restraint of something or other.

NOT NECESSARY

Mr. Kipling says that writers never lie, which is probably the reason that they leave the job of turning out blurbs about their books to their publishers.

EXCELLENT IDEA

Apparently when South American republics have a war they move into the jungle to insure privacy.

Has Revolutionized Life

By BRUCE CATTON

The Engineering Foundation, in New York, recently set out to discover just how unemployment affects the morale and the ideals of men who are out of work."

It learned, oddly enough, that engineers as a class are not filled with radical notions when they lose their jobs. They get resentful and discouraged, naturally—but they don't swing off toward communism or similar panaceas, as some jobless men do. Most of them are content to have the old system continue. All they want is to get their jobs back.

And all of this simply shows how little meaning that word "radicalism" really has nowadays. Engineers are generally ultra-conservative in their political and economic beliefs. This survey has shown that they mostly stay that way even under the pressure of unemployment. And yet engineers as a class probably have done more to change our form of society, our scheme of government and our economic organization than any other class alive.

To be sure, they have done it without in the least intending to. But they have done it, just the same, and they will continue to do so for a long time to come.

The engineering which gave us railroads and steamboats made it possible for the United States to expand over a continent without splitting up into a group of independent nations. It was engineering that doomed Jefferson's dream of a land of small farmers and small cities; engineering that gave the south a cotton empire; engineering that developed our big cities, exploited our mines and gave us our factory civilization.

It was the engineer, blithely thinking of nothing on earth except the age-old problem of how to get the most work done with the least energy, who gave us mass production, automobiles, electric power, modern communications and a network of good highways. And in giving us all of these things he set in motion forces which have changed our form of society almost beyond comprehension and bid fair to make equal changes in the future.

The engineer is not "radical," it seems. Well, why should he be? He ignores politics, economics and sociology—and remakes all three of those perplexing sciences overnight.

He may think he is the very essence of conservatism; and yet he sows the seeds of greater changes than all the long-haired theorizers that ever lived.

So They Say

I have no doubt that we are now in the last stages of this depression. Daily we read reports of increasing employment; there is a changed public psychology and a general belief that we are on the upward path.—Governor George White of Ohio.

How About Everything

By E. W. HOWE

We hear now that, in old times, girls never went anywhere with the boys without older persons being along to watch them, and see that they behaved properly . . . I went with the girls a long time ago, and girls had as much liberty then as now. I first heard of chaperones later in life, in reading that they were common in my time . . . The girls I went with, let me confess, were able to take care of themselves, so far as I was a threat; and I was about as bad as any of the other boys.

I seldom read without finding a recommendation for human service. It is a good recommendation, but I believe most people are wrong in interpreting the meaning of the sentiment. They believe that human service recommends that they do a great deal for others, as missionaries, Y. M. C. A. secretaries, Salvation Army drummers, welfare workers, writers, orators, doctors, preachers, etc.

First of all, human service means to me I should take good care of myself, and acceptably perform my part as one of the cogs in the human machinery. The failure of one cog, at a critical time, may cause serious trouble; and most human situations are serious enough to be called critical. If my weakness, neglect of duty, results in injury to others, I am ashamed; anyone should be.

Beyond this statement of human service, the field is large, and selections for special exhibitions should be selected with modesty and care; but if I am a sound part in a sound wheel, and wear down as well as the other cogs average, that is enough to satisfy the good and younger mechanic who will finally take down my machine to junk it.

The firmest foundation of life is Behaviorism; or what has been shortened into the word morality. The ambition to behave, soundly based on the selfish (not noble) knowledge that it is finally the best and easiest way, will supply all the human service a human can hope for.

Silerius says in his Memoirs he didn't ask his second wife (he confesses to having had most trouble with this one) to marry him; that she frequently said to him: "You would have me," and he was too timid to deny it. "Were she now alive," he adds, "I would be afraid to state this truth. As a soldier I have many times faced armed enemies, but I have always been cowardly with women. A soldier was once brought before me for whipping his wife, a camp follower who had seriously offended. I ordered the soldier's punishment, but secretly admired his bravery."

I have noted, in summer, that every little while my neice, who has lived with me a long time, puts on an appropriate uniform, and hoes awhile in the flower garden . . . And I'll bet that every time a stranger goes by, he says: "A mighty shiftless man lives in that house."

We all say an old man is too suspicious . . . As a matter of fact, is he? If there is anything in experience, are we warranted in saying it is less trustworthy at seventy than at thirty?

I was lately looking over old letters, and found one which said, in three places: "Burn this." Reference to the date showed that the letter was fifty-seven years old.

I lately violated one of my rules, and not only attended a banquet, but sat on the right of the toastmaster. He was rather good, and in one of his flights mentioned the Spartans, who, for three hundred years cultivated efficiency, health, but especially bravery in fighting. As a typical Spartan the toastmaster mentioned Lycurgus, a chief, who, when quite old, called the people together, said he was going away on a journey, and asked that they keep the Spartan laws he had recommended until his return. They promised, and kept the laws a long time, waiting for the return of Lycurgus. (He never returned; he went away to die alone, that he might not make trouble for those younger).

The man on the toastmaster's right, when called on, said he knew a better people than the Spartans, the Pennsylvania Dutch.

The Mongols are said to be the poorest people in the world, owing to so many of them being preachers, and therefore non-producers.

The population of the United States is a little beyond a hundred and twenty millions. Certainly two-thirds of them are preachers of one kind and another, and produce none of the actual essentials of life.

In the first place, half the population is composed of women, and almost no women are food producers, although all of them preach a good deal to the men who are.

In the next place there are millions of children in arms or in school, and these also preach to the men who plow the corn, reap the wheat, and drive up the cattle for milking or slaughter.

Still further along in the investigation one will find millions of others preaching health, religion, law, finance, art, etc., but who do no actual farming themselves.

I do not know what the actual figures are, but certainly we have six or seven preachers of various types to one actual food producer.

So we, as well as the Mongols, have departed from the old plan of everyone first producing his own food and shelter, and then giving incidental attention to such other matters as arise.

Feeding ourselves is not a very big job, if fairly distributed among the hungry.

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

A DOG'S LIFE—Estevao Fora, a Brazilian slave, made several attempts to escape prior to the Brazilian emancipation act of 1888. In accordance with custom he was muzzled by his owners in 1854 to mark him as a runaway, and the muzzle and collar were not removed for 34 years, until the act of May, 1888, which made slavery forever illegal on Brazilian soil. He was then given a little plot of ground to cultivate and died in Rio de Janeiro in 1901 at the age of 67.

PARIS—While Americans wondered where Prince Alexis Mdivani purchased the handsome black pearl ring that the former Barbara Hutton wore on her engagement finger, it turned out to be a Woolworth pearl after all! . . . Miss Hutton herself purchased the ring at a Paris jeweler's and paid 1,000,000 francs for it. She paid 10,000,000 francs for her pearl necklace.

From now on silk stockings will be the best possible present to bring French friends from America. A French law has just been passed prohibiting the sale in France of American-made silk stockings. . . . A debonair taxi driver, cap on one side of his head, a la Maurice Chevalier, spends all his spare time while at his taxi stand in front of the book stalls on the Left Bank, practicing on a small accordian. He seems to be more popular as an entertainer-for-the-loiterers than as a taxi driver. . . . In the imposing white Church of the Sacred Heart, atop Montmarte, where on Sunday afternoons Paris families, all dressed in their Sunday best, gather to burn candles for sick friends or to aid and abet some business deal, signs about the church read (translated freely) "Watch your purses while you pray!" . . . Cafe Americaine (American coffee with real cream) costs 35 cents a cup here now. . . . The biggest ad that many Paris cafes can boast these tourist days is "Corn on the Cob," though it costs 60 cents an ear, and tastes like field corn. . . .

At the Road Point a huge cafe located on the Road Point of the Champs Elysees, they have a show piece. . . . It is a heavy French dessert spoon, about the equivalent of our tablespoons. . . . The handle has two complete twists to it, instead of being straight. . . . One evening Cochet and some friends were eating there. . . . Someone asked him how his good right wrist was these days. . . . Cochet simply picked up this big spoon, put his napkin over it, to hold it, and with two quick twists of that right wrist turned the handle completely around twice. . . .

Americans returning from Spain say that generalissimo Franco has gone "Joan Crawford," particularly in Madrid, copying her make-up, her costumes, her plucked eyebrows. There are more pictures of Joan Crawford sold in Spain than of any two Spanish actresses.

It is an interesting experience for an American to have tea at the Paris apartment of Valentine Thomson, French political writer and lecturer who has toured America several times for the Foreign Policy association. . . . Her home is a veritable museum, located in a street of homes that her mother owns. . . . Two handsome walnut cases house the collection of early French glass that the great Anatole France gave her. . . . Around a plate rail high above a spacious sofa covered with a leopard skin that her husband's friend, Rex Ingram, presented to her, stand a whole row of fascinating little French porcelains that are part of the late Clemenceau's collection, which he gave her. . . . He was a life-long friend of her father, the late Gaston Thomson, long the Dean of the Chamber of Deputies and Maritime Minister of France during the World War. . . . "Tiger" Clemenceau used to trot Valentine on his knee, when she was a child. And she was always allowed to sit and listen during the private political talks between her father and Clemenceau. . . . In her bookcases are several first editions which were presents to her from her cousin, Marcel Proust. . . .

Watch for green fur this winter. The Paris zoo has a tiny bright green monkey that is tremendously popular with French children and it is rumored that since monkey fur will be used extensively this year, its color will gets its idea from this new pet.

L. S. U. Alumni to Hold Barbecue on Sept. 7

Ouachita Parish L. S. U. Alumni will stage a barbecue on the night of September 7 at the Bernstein country home, DeSiard road. All interested in this institution are urged to attend, and information received from Vicksburg is to the effect that L. S. U. alumni from there will come to Monroe for the celebration. Also Lincoln parish alumni may participate, stated O. C. Campbell, president of the Ouachita Parish L. S. U. Alumni association.

Dean J. G. Lee, of the college of agriculture, of L. S. U will deliver the chief talk of the evening at the barbecue, coming to Monroe especially to attend the event. Other professors also are on the program here.

After the talks, a barbecue supper will be served.

BULLET BELIEVED FATAL TO MOORE

Youth Shot by His Step-Father Is Not Expected to Live

Claude Moore, 20, shot Friday by his step-father, Anderson Warlick, 45, at their home in Crescent Bend, was reported Saturday night to be in a critical condition at the Clinic. In an operation performed Friday night a portion of the skull was removed from the brain and Saturday night it was stated the youth probably would not live through the night.

Two bullets struck Moore, the first going through the left leg between the knee and the ankle and the other entering the top of the head and lodging near the base of the ear.

Warlick was arrested by members of the police department and later was transferred to the parish jail, where he was booked on a charge of shooting with intent to kill. He refused to make a statement in connection with the shooting.

The shooting occurred in the kitchen of the Warlick home, in which Moore lived with his mother and step-father. Moore was said to have been in the room when the older man entered and began shooting without saying a word. Mrs. Warlick was quoted as saying she was at a loss to know the reason for the attack, which occurred with no warning whatever.

is a relative of May and Triefus, and that his family is capable of paying a large ransom.

"Bernard would be better off, I am afraid, if he were a rich boy," Rothgerber said today. "When the abductors realize by reading newspaper accounts of the case, that their prisoner is not well-to-do and is no kin to either Triefus or May, I fear for what may happen."

Previously, Captain of Detectives William Armstrong expressed the opinion that either quick death or release would be Bitterman's fate when his captors learned there is no chance of collecting a big ransom.

Triefus said there were no plans for raising any ransom money.

Mrs. Essie Bitterman, widowed mother of the missing man, was said by Triefus to be "badly upset" over her son's disappearance.

There has been no word from Bitterman since Thursday night when he left the store where he is department manager, after getting a telephone call from a woman, who said his young brother, Robert, was in a hospital, injured. The telephone call was a fake, police learned.

ROOSEVELT IS NOT SURE OF RIGHT TO ACCEPT NRA BADGE

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Aug. 26.—(AP)—President Roosevelt received an NRA badge today at his welcome home celebration but he told the crowd that he was afraid he was not quite honest in wearing it.

"The president of the Dutchess County society gave me a very beautiful NRA emblem as I came in," he said, "but I am afraid that I am not quite honest in wearing it because the good people who work with me in the White House I can't permit to work under the code of the NRA.

"We do have a long working day. Some times we start right early in the morning and some times we are still at it late at night. That is the one exception that I have got to approve."

their own machine and sped down the street.

Witnesses declared the bandit machine bore a Nebraska license.

The messengers were so confused that for a time police were unable to get an exact story of the incident. However, a good description of the two men was obtained. They were about 25 years old and of foreign extraction, probably Italian.

The money in the bag had just been obtained from the branch bank of the federal reserve. Bank officials said it was in the following combinations: $5,000 in $100 bills; $2,000 in 20's; $10,000 in 10's; $11,000 in 5's, and $8,000 in 1's.

Boden's companions in transferring the money were Vern A. Walker, a messenger, and D. E. Brown, a guard.

Boden was a substitute driver. The regular driver in the transfer of cash was ill today.

Gerardo Machado Sails For Refuge in Canada

HAVANA, Aug. 26.—(AP)—General Mario G. Menocal, president of Cuba from 1912 to 1920, and outstanding opponent of the recently overthrown Machado administration, today announced his reentry into the political arena as leader of the conservative party in the forthcoming elections.

It was generally believed he would again be a candidate for the presidency. After a visit to Provisional President Carlos Manuel De Cespedes, who wishes to retire after the present emergency is over, Menocal said he would "carry the banner of the conservative party, as well as of all Cuban political factions that are ready to fight for democratic principles."

Menocal was held prisoner for several months by the Machado government after being captured in the unsuccessful revolution of August, 1931.

COAL, CAR CODES ARE PRESSED BY ADMINISTRATION

from bituminous coal operators that they intended to seek similar wording in their code, upon which Johnson expects to turn his attention next.

The long-disputed problem of price fixing in the oil industry's code flashed up again meantime with the recovery administration's chief economist under attack for permitting publicity on his statement to Johnson that the price control provisions constituted "a serious blunder."

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—(AP)—The likelihood increased today that all the nation's retailers—including the drug retailers who were continuing their hearing—would be brought under a single master code which would cover a larger proportion of the nation's workers than any other compact so far prepared.

A new drug code was produced today which, with certain exceptions applicable to the drug trade, was similar to the general code of the other retail groups.

Wages were set at from $10 to $15 a week for 56 hours, varying according to populations of towns. The cost provisions was changed so that retailers would promise to sell no article for less than 21 per cent over the manufacturer's base price.

Officials felt that the drug code, still tentative in form, could be brought even closer to the general retail code. If the druggists are brought under a master code, NRA officials believed it would be relatively simple to get all retail groups under the single compact.

This would be designed not only to increase retail employment to or above the normal 3,000,000 in these groups but also to eliminate unfair practices which have been assailed by all the retail groups.

The principal point of contention had been the price fixing clause. The present drug code providing a 21 per cent mark-up compares with a 10 per cent mark-up in the general retail code. Since different trades sell the same merchandise, a difference in this basic mark-up would place other retail groups on a dissimilar competitive basis, a situation which administration officials are trying to avoid.

Druggists abandoned hopes that they could limit the sale of goods ordinarily classified as drug merchandise to drug stores only. Officials said it was impossible to allocate the sale of certain merchandise to certain classes of stores.

Dr. Robert Fischeis of Trenton, N. J., argued for inclusion in the retail drug code of a provision which would place all outlets of drugs and medicines, such as department and specialty stores, under the terms of the code.

Lee Tyler of Houston, Tex., requested that the sale of drugs and medicines be limited to drug stores. He said that he personally would be willing in exchange to give up the sale of such items as foods and clothing in his store if this were done.

Dr. William C. Woodward of Chicago, managing director of the American Medical association, urged that the code be amended to make it more clear that doctors, dentists, veterinarians, hospitals and dispensaries may continue to distribute drugs to patients and also that they may buy from wholesalers as well as retail stores.

A protest against special price considerations and other trade advantages being given chain stores by manufacturers was made by T. F. Shuler, representing the Greater Kansas City Druggists' association. He asked for a stabilized price for both the chain merchant and the independent dealer.

J. R. Inchcliff of Cleveland, representing three stamp trading companies, requested that no provision be included in the code which would prohibit the giving of trading or discount stamps with cash sales.

REPEAL FAVORED BY TEXAS VOTERS

all approve the 21st or repeal amendment.

Sheppard, co-author of the amendment, led the Texas campaign for retention of prohibition, delivering more than 50 speeches in the three senatorial districts, coatless and perspiring in the August heat as he exhorted voters to "hold the line."

Opposing the veteran dry leader was Vice President John N. Garner of Uvalde, who was among the first voters to cast his ballot today. Congressman Joseph Weldon Bailey, Jr., and ex-Governor James E. Ferguson, husband of Governor Miriam A. Ferguson, were active campaigners, pleading for support of the party platform and President Roosevelt's recovery program by tapping for public revenue the field of beer taxation.

Garner made no speeches, confining his efforts to public approval of the personal appeal directed to Texas by James A. Farley, national Democratic chairman.

Man Is Called Coward, Tries to Kill Himself

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 26.—(AP)—With the haunting cry of "coward" ringing in his ears, Joseph Eisler, 36, sought to redeem his pride today by committing suicide.

Yesterday, he said, he shied from a challenge to a fist fight. The challenger hissed "coward."

"That word rang in my ears, and lashed my brain through most of the night," he told police. "I could not sleep. I kept telling myself that perhaps he was right; that I was a coward.

"Where could I go among my friends and acquaintances without being thought a coward. And then the terrible thought flashed across my mind. What right has a coward to live? There was only one way out."

Early today he reached a decision. He got a safety rador blade and drew its sharp edge twice across his wrist, severing the arteries.

He lost considerable blood before he was taken to a hospital, but attendants said he would recover.

Man Held at Orleans For New York Swindle

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Extradition papers were being sought today to return William Young, alias William Turk, to Binghampton, N. Y., where he is wanted in connection with an alleged $200,000 swindle, police here announced.

Charles Keene, Jr., assistant attorney general of New York, said he planned to leave with Young early next week if the papers were granted.

Young was arrested here several weeks ago after local police received information that a group of Chicago men planned to operate a "bucket shop" here.

Lieutenant of Police O. J. Krause and Sergeant Edward Fish of Binghampton, also came here for Young.

The extradition papers were being sought from Governor O. K. Allen in Baton Rouge today.

Miss Virginia Purifoy And Aaron Parker Wed

Mrs. P. J. Newman, 505 Glenmar street, Saturday night received a telegram announcing the marriage of her sister, Miss Virginia Purifoy, to Aaron F. Parker. The marriage took place in Shreveport, the telegram said, but no details of the ceremony were given.

Miss Purifoy is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Purifoy of Camden, Ark. She has been living in Monroe for the last six years and has been employed in the office of Theus, Grisham, Davis and Leigh. Mrs. Cecil McConnell of Monroe is also her sister.

Mr. Parker is a prominent business man of this city. For several years he has been engaged in the real estate business and gas field supply business.

eagle means, and to urge housekeepers and the buying public to be sure that merchants possess this emblem if they desire public patronage.

A questionnaire is to be sent out to all who have secured blue eagles soliciting information as to how many have raised wages and put on more help. A blue star is to be added to the NRA emblem in the window of business establishments for each new employe put to work. Some appropriate emblem is to be added to designate the raising of wages.

Mr. Miller stressed the desire of the committee to be fair to all concerns that are trying to comply with the president's plans, as no hardships are to be imposed when employers are endeavoring to do their best under conditions that may exist.

A committee composed of W. H. Anders, and Aubrey Haas, was named to secure the coordination and cooperation of all luncheon clubs in Monroe and West Monroe in carrying out the program, while Mrs. Blanche Oliver was named together with Mrs. Fagan Cox and Miss Julia Wossman, to secure similar cooperation from all women's clubs and organizations.

Publicity is to be given through the press and other sources to extend public knowledge of the work that is to be accomplished in the community. The first elaborate attempt along this line is to be the mass meeting that is planned. The committee to arrange for the mass meeting will be composed of Matthew C. Redmond, Lee Hawkins, W. H. Anders, Aubrey Haas, Mrs. Fagan Cox and Mrs. T. L. Tippit.

In order that many from West Monroe may be able to attend, Mayor Arnold Bernstein is to be asked to remove the toll at the traffic bridge for two hours during the time the meeting is to be held.

British Bank Governor Will Call on Roosevelt

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Aug. 26.—(AP)—President Roosevelt arranged today for a visit here next week by Sir Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, upon the request of George Harrison, governor of the federal reserve bank of New York.

Sir Montagu has been on a mystery visit in this country for more than two weeks.

While naturally there is significance attached to his call here, the views of President Roosevelt against immediate stabilization of the currency in foreign exchanges are well known.

Stephen T. Early, a secretary to the president, announced tonight that Norman was coming here. A definite date for the call has not been fixed. It was made quite plain that the visit of the British bank head was at the request of Mr. Harrison.

Twelve thousand explosions - a minute

Henry Ford
Dearborn, Mich.

For every 5¼ inches which the Ford V-8 travels, its engine produces one power impulse. If "impulse" is not clear to you, say "expansion", or "explosion".

One drop of gasoline, hardly as large as a grain of wheat (there are 178 of these drops in a teaspoonful) is vaporized as gas and burned in the combustion chamber. It is the resulting "heat expansion", or tiny explosion, that moves the piston, and so moves your car—5¼ inches.

A mile at 60 is only a minute long. And every mile your V-8 travels, 12,000 of these small, closely-spaced explosions occur. The power impulses of the V-8 are so closely timed that they blend in one smooth continuous flow of power.

Now, it is natural that the small, confined combustion chambers should become pretty hot, each with its 1,500 explosions a mile. For remember, at 60 miles an hour, this is 1,500 explosions a minute for each of the 8 chambers. With fewer cylinders there would be just as many explosions per cylinder, but the flame would be larger. Heat, therefore, is not surprising.

Where cylinder heads are of cast iron, as many are, this heat cannot escape as rapidly as is desirable. And so the engine has a tendency to "knock" or "ping". Thus, cast iron makes it necessary to hold a lower compression in the firing chamber, and this prevents getting the full power of the engine.

But the cylinder heads on the Ford V-8 are aluminum, which allows excess heat to escape three times as fast as cast iron does. Housewives who use aluminum cooking pans know that this material distributes heat evenly. Add to this that it dissipates excess heat quickly, and you get the reasons for its use in the Ford V-8.

Our aluminum cylinder head adds 10 horsepower to the V-8 engine, by permitting high compression—and it gets this increased horsepower without increasing the gas consumption. In fact, it uses less gas.

Any grade of gas—with our aluminum cylinder heads—will give you more power and economy. Premium fuels are not necessary.

This is just another point where doing it better costs us more, but you get the benefit. An aluminum cylinder head costs four times as much as a cast iron one. When we put two aluminum heads on the V-8 not one cent was added to the price of the car.

The customer gets the increased power, the greater economy and the better performance.

MONROE GENERAL HOSPITAL OPENS TODAY

PUBLIC INVITED TO CALL AND INSPECT THIS REMODELED INSTITUTION

Edward Peteet To Be In Charge; Edward Groner Is To Be Superintendent

The Monroe General hospital, Ouachita parish's newest sanitarium, will throw open its doors to the public today in the building formerly occupied by the Riverside Sanitarium.

The building has been thoroughly renovated and decorated throughout, new equipment installed and the grounds beautified and is one of the most attractive institutions in the state.

The hospital will be in charge of Edward Peteet, formerly of the Baptist hospital in Alexandria. Mr. Peteet is a graduate of Baylor university, Waco, Texas, and has had considerable experience in the management of institutions of this nature.

Edward Groner of Alexandria is the superintendent. Mr. Groner comes to Monroe with the highest recommendations from leaders in the medical profession. He has successfully supervised the Baptist hospital of Alexandria, building it into one of the leading hospitals in Louisiana. Mr. Groner is the son of the president of Marshall college, Marshall, Texas. Before going to Alexandria he was connected with the Charity hospital in New Orleans and previous to that time was in business in the same city.

Dr. E. Burton Lehman of New Haven, Conn., has accepted the position as head of the X-ray laboratory department. He is a graduate of the University of Tennessee medical school and served as an interne in the Memphis General hospital. He received a two-year fellowship in radiology under the direction of Dr. Amedee Granger at the Charity hospital in New Orleans and had several months training in clinical pathology, followed in a special course in pathology under Dr. J. H. Connell of the Louisiana university medical school.

Mrs. Ona Peter Thompson will have charge of the dietory department. Mrs. Thompson is a graduate of the dietory school of Barnes hospital in St. Louis.

Miss Edith Slocum will be nurse supervisor. She is a graduate of the Tristate hospital in Shreveport, and took a post graduate course in anaesthesia and operating room technique at the Charity hospital in Shreveport.

A full staff of graduate nurses will be maintained at the hospital at all times.

MISSISSIPPI MAN KILLED IN PLUNGE

Oscar P. Gober Dies When He Falls at Washington Hotel

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Oscar P. Gober, 33, a prominent figure in Mississippi politics during the Bilbo administration, was killed early today in a fall from the sixth floor of the Warden Park hotel.

Washington authorities said they were convinced by the position of the body that Gober's death was accidental. Richard Wooton, who had the room next door, said he saw Gober fully dressed and apparently asleep on a day bed at 4 a.m. He was found dead at 6 a.m. by a bellboy.

Gober was a close personal and political friend of ex-Governor Theodore Bilbo, who is now employed in the department of agriculture. Gober came to Washington to get a government job and obtain veteran's compensation for an injury received in the navy during the war.

After the war, Gober attended the University of Mississippi and for two seasons played guard on the football team. Upon graduation he practiced law in Jackson and was appointed by Governor Bilbo to the state board of control of the university and colleges. He was also a member of the state board of bar examiners and the state barber board and of the former governor's staff.

He was in the thick of the controversy that raged in the state over the shake up of faculties in the state schools that resulted in expulsion of several Mississippi educational institutions from their accrediting associations. Since then the institutions have been reinstated.

INTERVIEW GIVEN BY JAMES M. COX

Says Stabilization and World Economic Planning Must Come

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 26.—(AP)—The Cleveland News quotes James M. Cox in an interview today as saying stabilization of currencies and world economic planning ultimately must come. Cox recently returned from the London economic conference.

"Free movement of gold will be established," said the former Democratic candidate for president, and one of President Roosevelt's delegates to the London conference.

"I should not be surprised to see Devaluation of the dollar when we have had sufficient rise in commodity prices; then I look for the nations of the world to establish orderly exchange.

"Restrictions on exchange are having a demoralizing effect on world trade."

Another world economic conference is inevitable, Cox said. In retrospect, he does not regard the recent conference as a complete failure.

Setting out to cure the world's economic ills, the conference failed to prescribe a general remedy for all because diagnosis revealed that the patients were in varying state of convalescence, and there was not any general cure for all, said the publisher.

"And a doctor can not prescribe a cure until his diagnosis is complete," Cox asserted. "There isn't any common prescription."

Cox declared that at the outset there had been great disappointment and some feeling over the failure to achieve currency stabilization.

"But on second thought the conference realized we had many things to do before stabilization," he said.

Before stabilization, Cox maintained countries must exercise their own national economic instruments to restore employment, creating demand for raw products and starting the flow of trade across frontiers.

PAST WEEK SEES CLIMB IN COTTON

Buying Is Promoted by Inflationary Talk, Higher Cables

By Frank I. Weller
Associated Press Farm Editor

WASHINGTON Aug. 26.—(AP)—Buying promoted by higher Liverpool cables a rise in foreign exchange and inflationary talk carried spot cotton up 35 points for the week the 10 principal markets reporting an average of 9.26 cents a pound compared with 8.90 a week ago and 8.27 last year.

The October option at New Orleans rose from 9.38-.39 cents a pound to 9.59-.60 and at New York December contracts sold up to 9.99 ar about 130 points above the low time of the reaction before increased hedging and realizing carried the market off to 9.88.

No very big buying was reported, but contracts were comparatively scarce and buyers were forced to bid the market up to fill their orders. Prices were steadier than for some time.

Demand for spot cotton continued rather indifferent with mills generally out of the market, but there appeared to be no pressure on the part of holders to sell either their old or new crop cotton. It was said that caution in the matter of production was being urged upon manufacturers by merchants who predicted further delay in development of purchasing power among consumers.

Domestic drygoods centers were said to have continued quiet with sales by manufacturers somewhat below production. According to the bureau of the census there were operated in the United States at some time during the month of July 26,100,000 cotton spinnig spindles compared with 25,500,000 in June and 19,800,000 in July a year ago.

The same source says 459,911 bales from the 1933 growth were ginned prior to August 16, compared with 251,451 and 90,608 bales for the same period of the two previous seasons.

The New York cotton exchange estimates the week's forwardings to mills of the world at 265,000 to 275,000 bales compared with 256,000 last week and 237,000 last year.

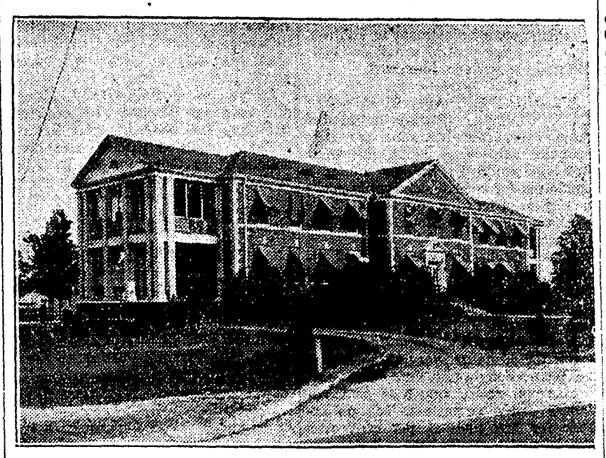
A daily trade paper, however, said that heavily increased prices for American products already had more than offset foreign depreciation of the dollar in many markets with the result that many orders which otherwise would have come to American producers were being diverted to the united kingdom and continential Europe.

Reports of that situation brought another blast from inflationists, but it was evident at the white house that the administration still was avoiding the expediency of currency manipulation to increase commodity prices. There was no indication the idea had been definitely shelved, but it seemed assured there would be further trial of present recovery policies before the dollar value was debased.

The federal market news service said the cotton crop as a whole continued to make satisfactory advance in much of the greater portion off the belt, but information from Dallas was to the effect that prospects for a top crop in all Texas areas were doubtful unless conditions were improved by moisture and favorable weather. Oklahoma cotton was said to have made average progress during the week despite too much rain in many sections with attendant increasing weevil and bollworm damage.

An informal hearing on the cotton processing tax to which representatives of the textile industry have been invited has been set by farm administrators for September 7. While government economists are expected to present a mass of conclusive evidence in behalf of the tax it was reported from Greenville, South Carolina, that mill executives there said they had "only begun the fight" against it.

HOSPITAL OPENS HERE TODAY



Above is a view of the Monroe General hospital, which opens its doors to the public today. The building was formerly occupied by the Riverside sanitarium, and is located on South Grand street. Edward Groner of the Baptist hospital in Alexandria, is superintendent of the institution, and Edward Peteer, formerly connected with the same hospital, is business manager.

TREASURY ENVOY TO GO TO CUBA

U. S. to Send Man to Aid Newly Designated Ambassador

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—(AP)—The United States has decided to send a treasury representative to Cuba to assist the newly designated ambassador, Jefferson Caffery, in studying a relief program for the republic's economic distress.

In making this known today, state department officials denied rumors that President Roosevelt was planning economic intervention in that country.

Linking the announcement with a denial that Provisional President De Cespedes had requested the services of American economic advisers, officials said no commission of experts would be sent to Cuba.

Caffery, who next month will succeed Ambassador Sumner Welles while the latter takes over the former's duties as assistant secretary in charge of Latin-American affairs, conferred twice today with Dean Acheson, acting secretary of the treasury. It has not been decided which of the treasury's staff of experts will go to Cuba.

The plan to send a treasury official rather than a corps of advisers was decided upon to avoid the appearance of the economic intervention which Cuban officials have denied ever was requested. It was pointed out the practice of assisting a treasury representative to embassy staffs is entirely in accord with international practice.

Coincident with today's announcement came official indications that some means should be found to scale down Cuba's foreign debt. More than half of the republic's funded indebtedness of approximately $147,000,000 is owed directly in the United States.

LUMBER LEADERS NAME COMMITTEE

Group of Seven Men to Have Strong Power Over Production

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 26.—(AP)—A committee of seven that will haze czaristic power over production of all hardwood in the southern and Appalachian territories was named today from the directorate of the Hardwood Manufacturers institute.

Lee Robinson of Mobile, Ala., president of the institute, will be chairman of the committee, which derives its power from the national lumber code through Code Authority, Inc., the controlling organization set up by the lumber code.

Shortly after it was announced that the committee had been set up, Mr. Robinson said that the September allocation to mills would be made Tuesday and J. H. Townshend, secretary of the institute, estimated that upon present information, a production quota of 150 hours for each mill was indicated for September.

Other members of the committee are: J. W. Mayhew, Columbus, Ohio; B. B. Burns, Huntington, W. Va.; Keith M. Spurrier, Memphis; Ben Johnson, Shreveport, La.; Preston Noyes, Louisville, Ky.; W. A. Delanely, Columbus, Miss., and J. L. Camp, Jr., Franklin, Va.

Mr. Townshend also announced that the institute would be incorporated immediately so that it can execute contracts that will aid in its enforcement of the lumber code.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 26.—(AP)—The board of directors of the Southern Pine association, representing pine wood manufacturers of 16 southern states, today approved expenditure of $50,000 a month by the association to enforce provisions of the lumber code in the southern pine division.

At the closing session of the general association meeting, the board announced its formal approval of the report of the finance committee fixing the year's budget and designating a code fee of 15 cents per thousand feet of lumber from each mill, based on mill shipments each previous month.

The board eliminated the $25 a month minimum membership fee and authorized reduction in regular dues from five to three cents per thousand feet, based on shipments.

A proviso established a monthly quota for southern pine for September, October and November, of 450,000,000 feet. Statistics are being compiled which would allow for establishment of minimum prices for southern pine lumber through determining the production cost.

Scout Court of Honor Is Held Near Tallulah

A court of honor meeting for the Madison parish district was held Friday night at the week-end camp site, about five miles from Tallulah, G. W. Simpson, executive for the Ouachita Valley council, said Saturday. Dr. P. M. Gilmer presided at the meeting, in which a camp fire court of honor program was conducted.

One boy was invested with the rank of tenderfoot, two were awarded first class rank and merit badges were awarded to a number of others. R. H Wiggins, assistant scoutmaster, was certified to the national council for the award of the eagle badge. It is expected that the award will be made in Baton Rouge at a later date.

Mr. Simpson was in attendance and spoke on the organization and functioning of the Ouachita Valley council. A large number of parents of scouts and members of the district committee were present and witnessed the ceremony.

FEDERAL RESERVE TO WATCH CREDIT

General Statement of Open Market Policy Is Given Out

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—(AP)—The federal reserve board intends that its expansion or contraction of credit through bank purchases of government securities "shall be governed with a view to accommodating commerce and business and with regard to the general credit situation of the country."

Consequently, it was held unofficially today that there is not likely to be, soon, a sizeable decrease in the amount of money the 12 central reserve banks spend in open market operations—purchasing government securities.

The banks stepped their purchases up to $35,000,000 last week from $11,000,000 the week before.

Besides issuing this general statement of open market policy, the reserve board in its regular monthly bulletin took a look at business conditions in April, May and June—before the NRA got well under way. It found:

"A rapid rise in business activity and a sharp advance in commodity and security prices. * * * Industrial production increased from 60 per cent of the 1923-25 average at the end of the first quarter to * * * about 95 per cent in July. * * *

"Employment has expanded at a much slower rate than production, as is usual in the early stages of recovery, since giving more work to those already on the payroll precedes the hiring of new workers. More than 1,500,000 persons were re-employed during the second quarter—but the number still idle in June approximated 11,000,000. * * *

"The rapid increase in activity was due in part to anticipation of further advance in commodity prices and of the effects of such impending developments as the reduction of hours and wages under the new codes and the imposition of processing taxes under the agricultural adjustment act."

Since this period covered in this report, Hugh S. Johnson, national recovery administrator, has been seeking to overcome some of the conditions found by the reserve board.

He decided several weeks ago that production was going up too fast for wages and re-employment. Since then, many industries have been put under permanent or temporary agreements reducing working hours, so as to provide more jobs, and fixing minimum pay rates.

NRA officials held today that the application of these agreements was bringing payrolls and production nearer the same line, and that a national survey now would show considerably fewer than 11,000,000 unemployed.

The open market committee will continue to watch conditions closely. It must, under regulations promulgated for it by the board, meet four times a year—or "oftener if deemed necessary."

P. S.—HE GETS THE JOB

Edmund Lowe has a real job as "Her Bodyguard" to winsome Wynne Gibson, in Paramount's B. P. Schulberg production, starting today at the Capitol theater, but he likes it. P. S.—He wins a promotion. Besides this sparkling comedy drama there is a stage show featuring the Lillian Stovall players with Bob Carson and his orchestra presenting popular rhythm with singers, dancers, and novelties. The Lillian Stovall players appear at three performances today only.

TODAY'S AMUSEMENTS

AT THE PARAMOUNT—Twelve of the world's most famous music composers are represented in the dramatic musical score of Marlene Dietrich's new Paramount picture, "The Song of Songs," currently at the Paramount theater. The music was arranged by the musical department of the Paramount studio under the direction of Nathaniel Finston.

Wagner, Bach, Tschaikowsky, Beethoven, Haydn, Schubert, Mozart, Chopin, Mendelssohn and Ivanici are some whose works were chosen to accentuate the mood of the picture.

Of the modern composers, selections from Johann Strauss waltzes are outstanding. Another well-known modern song writer who contributed to the score is Fridrich Hollander, author of "Johnny," a number which Miss Dietrich sings in the film. Several years ago her recording of this song in German sold in the millions. Hollander also wrote the song, "Falling in Love Again" which the star sang in "The Blue Angel."

In the days of silent pictures, film companies arranged elaborate musical scores for each picture, and the classics usually were represented in them.

Talking pictures brought to Hollywood many popular song writers. In the first days of the audible pictures, the theme song was found in most films. Recently the only music heard on the screen has been the popular song, or selections from contemporary music chosen to illustrate a mood.

Rouben Mamoulian, director of the film, believed that "The Song of Songs," which features Brian Aherne, Lionel Atwill and Alison Skipworth, presented such an artistic theme that any other score than a classical one would be out of place.

Success of this innovation in the picture, one of the most important to come from Hollywood this year, will be followed eagerly, and the great classics of music once again may be heard in the movie theaters.

Monday will be the last day for this show here.

AT THE CAPITOL—Story of the romance between a beautiful stage star and the private detective hired by a jealous "sugar-daddy" to protect her from rivals is "Her Bodyguard," romantic comedy featuring Edmund Lowe and Wynne Gibson, which opens Sunday and Monday at the Capitol theater.

Though its action is set in New York, and its heroine is a stage star, the story is said to have caused many a red face in Hollywood, where bodyguards are as numerous as movie stars.

"Her Bodyguard" is a B. P. Schulberg production, released through Paramount. In its cast in addition to Lowe and Miss Gibson, are Edward Arnold, Johnny Hines, Marjorie White, Alan Dinehart and Fuzzy Knight.

Wynne plays the role of the star, and Lowe is cast as her bodyguard. His assignment to that task comes about through the enmity between Dinehart, cast as Wynne's producer, and Arnold, cast as a millionaire. The latter two, it seems, both have designs upon the girl, and each suspects that the other will win her. Arnold hires Lowe to keep an eye upon the girl, to make sure that Dinehart doesn't get anywhere near her.

Wynne burns up when she first hears about it, but soon discovers that it's fun to have a bodyguard, and particularly nice to have Lowe in that capacity. In fact, she soon finds, she's in love with him.

From then on, the action is fast and furious, as Lowe and Wynne seek to outwit Dinehart and Arnold. There's plenty of amusement before they finally succeed.

"Where Have I Heard That Melody?", current hit tune, is one of the numbers presented in the picture.

Claude Harrison has returned to Monroe from Jackson, Miss., where he attended a meeting at which the Louisiana-Mississippi Tobacco association was organized. Mr. Harrison was elected president and W. P. Thomas of Natchez secretary. The meeting was attended by 75 jobbers from the two states.

POLICE FRUSTRATE KIDNAPING SCHEME

Gang Is Nabbed on Eve of Abduction of Connecticut Judge

HARTFORD, Conn., Aug. 26.—(AP)—An unflagging pursuit was maintained today in the investigation which Connecticut authorities said had thwarted a kidnaping plot on the very eve of its execution.

With two men in the Hartford county jail under $25,000 bonds each on charges of conspiracy to kidnap, and two others held as material witnesses, the authorities said they sought seven more men.

State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn and Detective Edward J. Hickey said the ring had plotted to kidnap a wealthy Springfield, Mass., business man and to hold him in a lonely shack on the Southington mountain for $50,000 ransom.

Those held on the conspiracy charge, Ernest Corvo and Mario Campisi, were arrested Tuesday night at Windsor Locks. Alcorn said: "They were out to meet their accomplices and complete the kidnaping that night."

Members of the gang were recruited from Massachusetts and Connecticut, Alcorn said, and they had marked for kidnaping Judge Israel Poliner of the Middletown police court, a prominent figure in the Connecticut judiciary.

The state's attorney vigorously denied reports that he himself had been threatened by kidnap plots.

The Most Beautiful ROOF 'CORTRIGHT'

Without any exceptions, when painted with Cortright Paints, Red, Slate or Green, the lightest roof in existence, weighing 1-8 as much as slate asbestos, or composition shingles, thus saving freight. Hail-proof; rain-proof; absolutely fire-proof. Composition shingles will burn; place them in the fire.

I have just finished reroofing 10 buildings, all of which had composition shingles, which give less than seven years' service. I roofed E. Kaliski's residence, 320 Breard street, 25 years ago. It has never been painted, does not leak a drop, and is good for 25 years more.

I placed a Cortright roof on J. A. Davenport's residence in Mer Rouge, La., in 1909. It has never leaked a drop and is a splendid roof today. Fred Fudickar, 1000 Riverfront; C. P. Hartley, 409 M St.; Barney Oakland, 1806 S. Grand St.; W. F. Cummings, 902 Walnut St.; all have Cortright roofs and no complaints.

The Monroe Steam Laundry is the next Cortright roof on the list. I reroofed seven buildings in the town of Collinston, all of which were composition shingles, badly perforated by hail. I am offering more years of roof-service, more fire protection and the best insurance rate that can be had for less money, than any roofing concern in Monroe, La.

August 13, 1933, Morning World, noticed Genaco Latite Shingles right over your present old roof (advertisement). It seems strange but true, I put a Cortright metal shingle roof over just such a roof for Joseph Schab, at Spencer, La.

conducted to death by the Reverend Father McCafrey, prison chaplain. One interrupted his prayers to say: "me innocent." The other said nothing.

At about the same time, in Oklahoma Claude Oliver, twenty-eight, and his nephew, George Oliver, eighteen, were killed for murdering Claude Oliver's young bride, to collect a $5,000 insurance policy.

HOW FAST AND FAR, and how long must those souls, suddenly released, travel to reach the nearest place of reward or punishment? The fixed star nearest us is distant 25 million miles multiplied by one million. That is our NEAR neighbor. To get beyond the nearest of the "outside universes" those souls must travel a number of miles multiplied by 186,000, equal to the number of seconds in 300,000,000 years, or 300,000,000 "light years." If they went as fast as radio, seven times around the earth in less than a second, their journey would last 300,000,000 years.

THE NATIONAL COUNCIL on crime says that "every year, on the average," 12,000 persons are murdered in the United States, 3,000 are kidnaped, 100,000 assaulted, 50,000 robbed. Our murder "crop" has increased 350 per cent since 1890.

Also, 40,000 homes are burlarized, and more than $100,000,000 lost through incendiary fires, yearly.

This we stand, the American does not take crime seriously, and $100,000,000 is not such a large sum.

BUT WHEN TOLD that, crime costs the people of the United States thirteen thousand million dollars, the figures become important.

One year's crime bill would pay Europe's ten billion debt, with three thousand million dollars left over. The cost of one year's crime waste would amount to far more money than the government has spent for national improvements since Hancock signed the Declaration of Independence.

MR. ROY W. DAVIS, lawyer of Marion, North Carolina, says "I read your daily article in the Charlotte Observer. Please publish your reasons for saying that any intelligent man who can, should get an automobile?"

This is one answer. There are a thousand others, better.

If you were a bird without wings, hopping along in the dust, and if you were an intelligent bird, you would get wings if you could

What wings are to a bird, an automobile is to a man. In addition the automobile doubles the life of a man or woman, making it possible to do, see, and go, twice as much, and as far.

AUGUST HECKSCHER of New York, who has everybody's praise and good wishes, because he has done so much for poor children, is eighty-five years old today. His motto is "there is no old age if you have courage, since courage and youth are the same." He adds, indifferently: "I have just lost a third fortune, and must start to make another."

He will doubtless make it and spend it well. He possesses the courage that is youth.

IF YOU HAVE READ "Riders to the Sea," you know the old woman who, one by one, gathered up the dead bodies of her drowned sons. A sordid imitation of that tragedy appeared in New York, where Mrs. Rachel Marazzo screamed in court: "One, two, three, one by one they kill my sons."

Night before last another one, the third in her family was killed, Larro, twenty years old. A machine gun in a passing automobile "drilled" Larro's body with seven slugs.

The mother who has three sons left, says they, too, will be murdered. The police call it a "numbers racket."

THE OIL CODE, it is understood, will stop foolish waste and reckless, competitive price cutting. Already, Standard and other companies are paying more per barrel for the oil they buy.

This is encouraging for gentlemen that buy and sell oil stock. However, they should remember that NRA will increase the annual operating cost of oil companies by about $300,000,000 and make competition difficult in foreign countries, where they have no NRA and such concerns as Shell, Royal Dutch and Anglo-Persian oil companies, can pay men as little as they like.

The choir of Old Trinity church, New York, first appeared in vestments on Sunday, Oct. 14, 1860, when the services were attended by Albert Edward, Prince of Wales.

Eve Bradford
EDITOR

DEAR BETTY: Here it is almost September with everybody becoming school-minded again. Johnnie is beginning to gaze ruefully at that shiny looking pair of shoes that are bound to pinch his feet after a summer of blissful barefootedness—Big sister is beginning to wonder if her coat of tan is really so becoming after all—Brother is looking thoughtful, occasionally mumbling something about the "eta bita pies," "try outs" and "pledges"—Mother is hauling out her sewing machine which she is pressing into service, and father is beginning to wonder how much it all will cost him.

Fair young vacationists are beginning to trek back to Monroe, bright eyed and happy after a summer in the mountains, on the coast or a trip to that Mecca of all tourists this summer, Chicago, where the marvelous Century of Progress exposition is attracting so many thousands.

Johnnie Cox is having such a lovely time in Chicago where she is the guest of her aunt Mrs. Philip Conner at the Park-Lane hotel. Not long ago Johnnie had the privilege of meeting Carrie Jacobs Bond at a luncheon at the Drake hotel. Mrs. Bond sang one of her favorite selections "Perfect Day" on this occasion. Johnnie is having such a delightful time that she plans to remain in Chicago until November. Louise Gray is also enjoying the world's fair in Chicago, and Happy Tidwell and Arthur Tidwell recently motored up.

With the early autumn days so close upon us we are all becoming clothes minded. Bella Scherck Davidson has such an interesting line of street dresses and evening dresses not to mention those luxurious fur coats and perky little hats in Miss Alice Henry's department. Hot though it be, the temptation is too great to try on one of those swanky fur coats with their unique sleeve treatment giving them quite a Parisian air.

You should see that beautiful evening dress—brown taffeta, puffed sleeves and gold belt—quite the latest word in evening apparel.

Everybody is talking about the concert Friday night. Florence Ziegler and Eileen MacKinnon scored a hit that night. Eileen has developed into a wonderful violinist during the past few years.

Monroe is justly proud of these two talented young artists.

Eve returned today so I must close up my typewriter and bid you all a fond adieu.

Gwendolyn.

Interesting Program of Popular Classics Given By Artists Friday Night

A rare treat was in store for all music loving persons who attended the concert Friday night featuring Miss Florence Ziegler, pianist and Miss Eileen MacKinnon violinist at the Georgia Tucker auditorium, sponsored by the Monroe Recreation department.

Tall baskets filled with colorful zinnias created an ideal background for the summery frocks of the two beautiful young artists.

Miss Ziegler was lovely in a model of azure blue sheer over pink satin while Miss MacKinnon wore a frock of cream colored taffeta fashioned along classic lines.

It is unusual to find a concert pianist who is also a good accompanist. Miss Ziegler is a happy combination of both rendering her solo numbers with exquisite skill and playing her accompaniments with sympathetic understanding.

Her rendition of Moskowski's "Caprice Espagnol" was especially well received. Brounoff's "Chinese Lantern Dance" brought up visions of soft footed coolies pattering along the crooked streets of Fouchow and the majestic chords of MacDowell's "Concert Etude" and lilting melody of Liadov's "Musical Snuff Box" both evoked enthusiastic applause from the enthusiastic audience.

Monroe is singularly blessed in having an artist of Miss MacKinnon's talent and ability. Her beautiful interpretation of Bruch's "Concerto in G minor" was given with rare technique and skill, playing as she did difficult passages of double stops with perfect mastery and ease. Schubert's "L'Abeille" lightly and daintily performed was a realistic translation into music of the nectar loving bee buzzing and fluttering among the flowers. The "Ghost Dance" and "Indian Lament" were also well received by the appreciative audience.

The program Friday night, combining as it did, and interesting repertoire of both popular and deeper numbers will linger long in the memories of those music lovers who were privileged to attend.

'Dulcy' to Be Presented by Local Talent

Probably the busiest person in Monroe during the past few months has been Emma Alexander director of "Dulcy" the first Little Theater production of the season. "Dulcy" a clever three act comedy by George Kaufman and Marc Connelly promises to exceed all expectations.

With unflagging enthusiasm and untiring interest Mrs. Alexander has conducted rehearsals and directed the activities of the Little Theater from early morn until late at night. Efficient committees and a splendid cast are doing much to contribute to the success of this production which will be given Tuesday evening August twenty ninth.

Elizabeth Biedenharn who by the way studied at King Smith studio Washington D. C. last winter has developed unusual histrionic talent and her interpretation of "Dulcy" borders on the professional.

Mary Lee Sullivan and Mary Louise O'Donnell are likewise showing a distinct flare for the stage.

Much comment has been made regarding the colorful posters that have been placed in some of our downtown windows. Credit for these fascinating works of art is due Mr. Sam Turner and Mrs. Alexander.

The stage scenery has at last reached that state of perfection desired by the committee under the direction of Mrs. Elmer Richards and the members now feel that they can sit back and admire the finished product of their creation.

"Dulcy" will be presented Tuesday evening August twenty ninth at the Junior College auditorium at eight o'clock.

Mrs. B. L. Mulhearn Entertains With Bridge

Mrs. B. L. Mulhearn was a charming hostess Thursday evening when she entertained members of the Louise McGuire Benevolent club with a beautifully appointed bridge at her home on Morris avenue.

Summer flowers effectively arranged added a decorative note to the occasion. At the conclusion of the evening Mrs. Clyde Culver was awarded the prize for high score and Mrs. O. E. Passeman received the gift for consolation. Refreshments were served to the following guests:

Mrs. R E. Fuqua, Mrs. Herry Roberts, Mrs. J. E. Kersh, Mrs. W. H. Armstrong, Mrs. Lou Ella Work, Mrs. Joe Thompson, Mrs. O. E. Passeman, Mrs. J. B. Swanson, Mrs. Clyde Culver, Miss Mary Mulhearn and Miss Opal Hanks.

Mr. Felix Terzia and Senator Leo Terzia of Bastrop left Thursday for New Orleans where they will attend the meeting for the Southern Pine Lumber association which will be held for the purpose of discussing the NRA code.

Friends of Miss Bessie Henry will regret to learn that she recently had the misfortune to break her ankle and will be confined to her home for the next six weeks. Miss Henry will be glad to have her friends call during this period.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Roberts have returned from a delightful visit to the World's Fair in Chicago.

Monroe Club Women Outline Interesting Programs for Winter's Course of Study

September with its tang of autumn in the air and its vague hint of cooler days and cooler nights fills us with new ambition and new hope.

Perot will serve as president and the first meeting will be held October second with Mrs. H. L. Breard.

"Pageantry and Buildings" will be the course of study followed by members of the Study Club. Holladay-Mayes Wedding Solemnized

Of sincere interest to a host of friends in North Louisiana was the marriage of Miss Ethel Irene Mayes of Monroe to Mr. William Noble Holladay of Mooringsport, La., which was solemnized with beautiful simplicity and charm and dignity of detail in the home of the brides' aunt, Mrs. E. L. Ikerd in Monroe, La., August 20, at 3:00 p.m.

Rev. T. J. Holladay, the uncle of the groom read the impressive ceremony, assisted by Rev. S. S. Holladay, great uncle of the groom, who, thirty years ago united in marriage the groom's parents.

The long living room was lovely with myriads of pink roses and plumosa ferns in crystal vases. At one end of the room graceful baskets of roses and ferns formed an aisle leading to the beautiful arch draped with trailing clematis and climbing pink roses and fern which formed an altar.

The nuptial music was rendered by Mr. Loyd Walters and Miss Martha Moore, instructor of music at Marshall college. Prior to the ceremony Miss Moore sang, "I Love You Truly," and "At Dawning." And for the recessional, Mr. Walters rendered Mendelsshon's Wedding March.

Entering at the first strains of the wedding march was little Doris Elizabeth Burdeaux, the lovely little flower girl, exquisitely dressed in a long frock of pink organdie hand embroidered with blue forget-me-nots.

Holladay-Mayes Wedding Solemnized

The bride's attendants were Miss Julia Dorian of Shreveport, maid-of-honor, and Mrs. F. H. Burdeaux, sister of the bride and matron of honor. Miss Dorian was gracefully gowned in a pale green organdie frock with small hat and veil to match. The dress was modeled on princess lines, flaring at the bottom and touching the floor. She carried a beautiful arm bouquet of pink roses tied with ribbons. Mrs. Burdeaux's costume was similar in design, but of a beautiful shade of pink. She also carried a bouquet of pink rosebuds.

The groom's attendants were Mr. F. H. Burdeaux, and Mr. Rayford Holladay, cousin of the groom and best man, who wore a dark suit with a boutonniere taken from the bride's bouquet.

The bride entered with her father, Mr. B. H. Mayes, who gave her in marriage, and was met at the altar by the groom and his best man. Her beautiful ivory satin wedding gown was fashioned along princess lines, falling gracefully in folds to the floor. The high neck line in front with its low cut back was most becoming, and the bride's slenderness was emphasized by the puff sleeves fitting tightly from the elbow and ending in a point on the hand. The exquisite bridal veil was held in either side of her dark hair with a cluster of orange blossoms. She carried a beautiful bouquet of brides roses, and for something old, wore an engraved old gold pin in the shape of a lyre which belonged to her great-great grandmother and which has been in the family for over one hundred and fifty years.

A beautiful hand-made lace cloth covered the round table in the dining room which was adorned by the three tiered cake, beautifully decorated with sweetheart roses. After the bride cut the cake the hostesses were assisted in serving the guests by Mrs. George Harrell, Miss Lula Inabet and Miss Marguriete Ikerd.

The bride's mother, Mrs. Mayes, wore a beautiful rose crepe dress with accessories to match, and the groom's mother, Mrs. C. L. Kay of Mooringsport, was gowned in a pale jonquin chiffon model.

The numerous gifts were attractively displayed in an adjoining room. Among the lovely gifts received was a chest of silver given by the groom's parents.

The bride changed her costume for an early fall model of brown wool crepe and satin with corsage and matching accessories.

The bride and groom left immediately on their honeymoon. Before returning they expect to attend the Century of Progress. They will make their home in Belcher where Mr. Holladay is athletic instructor in the Belcher high school.

The bride graduated with honors from Louisiana State Normal where she was a popular student and a member of Pi Kappa Sigma sorority and Alpha Phi Gamma honorary fraternity. The groom received his degree at L. S. U. where he was outstanding in athletics and military science, being a track man, and was captain of company "F" in his senior year. He is a member of Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity, Scabbard and Blade, and "L" Club.

The out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Kay, parents of the groom of Mooringsport, Rev. and Mrs. T. J. Holladay of Logansport, Rev. S. S. Holladay, Sr., of Pelican, La., Rev. and Mrs. S. S. Holladay, Jr., of Marion, La., Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Holladay and family of Bastrop, Mr. R. E. Holladay, Sr., of Many La., Mr. and Mrs. M. Rogers of Silsby, Tex., Mr. Doris Floyd of Beaumont, Tex., Miss Margie Youngblood of Magnolia, Ark., Mr. and Mrs. H. B. May of Shreveport, Mrs. Loyd Walters of Shreveport, Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Stevens and Martha Stevens of Mooringsport, Mr. W. C. Shuford of Zwolle and Miss Dovie Shuford of Zwolle, Mr. Jack Clancy of Marshal, Tex., Mrs. B. L. Pitman and Mrs. Leroy Sullivan of Vicksburg, Miss., Miss Lena Runnell and Mrs. Byrd Runnell of Delhi, La.

Friends of Mrs. R. H. Gannaway will regret to hear of her illness in St. Francis sanitarium, where she was removed Saturday morning.

Puppet Shows Given Friday

Rivalry was keen Friday morning when young and aspiring representatives from each of the various playgrounds presented their puppet shows at St. Matthews school auditorum.

Adults as well as children filled the auditorium and much enthusiasm was displayed by the admiring friends of the participants. First honors were awarded the Sherrouse playground for the splendid presentation of "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs."

Second place was given Barkdull Faulk playground for their production of "Hansel and Gretel."

Children who have been attending the playgrounds during the summer have spent weeks preparing for this interesting project and have created their own puppets. Not only did they fashion these interesting little figures with their nimble fingers but designed and made their costumes, wrote their plays and presented the finished product.

The entire program presented Friday morning included: "The Story of the Three Little Pigs" (in the ferm of an operetta) by the children of the Georgia Tucker playground.

Clarinet solo by George Vaughn, Atkinson playground.

DARLING FOOL

by MABEL McELLIOTT

CHAPTER XXV

Sandra's voice, in spite of her desperate efforts to keep it cool, had a note of hysteria. "Where are you taking me now?"

"You keep your mouth shut!" The woman n the heavy veil, the one who had joined her captor a moment before, spoke hoarsely. Sandra had a fleeting impression she had heard that voice before and that its owner was attempting to disguise it. She shrank from the glare of eyes behind the heavy drapery of gauze. There was something wildly intimidating about that stare.

They conferred for a few minutes outside the closed door while the girl on the couch, her feet still bound, allowed her eyes to rove frantically about the room, seeking some means of escape. There seemed to be none. The window was locked and barred—she could see that. Even if her shackles were loosed it would take some superb tactics to get out of this fetid room. Fool—fool she had been to come alone! They had got her into this trap with maddening ease.

Sandra's thoughts roved to home and her father. He would be reading that soiled note presently. If she knew him, he had already telephoned the police. Then what? Would his life also be in danger? Pretending to shrug off this notion as pure melodrama, Sandra raised her head proudly. The man reentered and, stooping, loosened the ropes which bound her slender ankles together.

"Come along, you!" he said, not unkindly. "We're steppin' out of here."

Sandra brushed against the woman in the passage as she followed. Again she had a sense of imminent menace, of an almost tangible hatred.

The man indicated she was to sit beside him in their rickety sedan. Before stepping into it Sandra glanced about quickly to fix the scene in her mind. In the darkness she could see only a rotting fence and dooryard. The whole place was like half a hundred discouraged farms tended by renters in the countryside. There was nothing to distinguish it.

"Never mind your lookin'," the man cackled. "We're not comin' this way again."

The veiled woman clambered into the back seat and Sandra felt those boring eyes upon her.

The rode, bumping and swaying, for what seemed to the girl hours although when she glanced at the dial of her watch she saw it was only 11 o'clock. Curious they didn't trouble to blindfold her! She knew this road—it was the Embury Turnpike. Wouldn't it be the simplest thing, she thought, to scream—to attract the attention of some passing motorist? For all she knew alarms might have been broadcast already regarding her disappearance.

As if reading her thoughts, a rasping voice from the rear said harshly. "No funny business now. I've got a gun."

They turned left into a lane lined with poplars. The moon was rising and the landscape lay cool and sharply etched before them, like a back drop in a theater. Black against the sky rose a clumsy house, sprouting half a dozen chimneys. Dark. Sinister.

"Wait here," the man commanded his henchwoman. He jumped out and went about to the back of the house, returning presently in disgruntled mood.

"Key's not here," he cried to the woman in the back seat. Sandra had an almost insane impulse to laugh. It was so absurd, this criminal protesting innocently that he oculdn't get into a house because he hadn't a key.

The woman wrenched the car door open, evidencing her intention of searching for the missing key. But instead she paused, stifling a scream. Lights were blurring the roadbed of the lane. A car was coming toward them at top speed.

"It's the cops!" yelled the man. "Let's go." He flung himself into the driver's seat. The starter whirred—died. Again and again he tried it, desperation in every move. But the car bore down on them.

"Run for it!" said a hoarse voice. Sandra saw the veiled woman trip over a log. Then the lights of the car shone full into her eyes.

"You big—!"

Sandra looked up, half laughing, half crying. But instead of the friendly blue-coated figure she had expected to see, she found herself staring into the eyes of James, the chauffeur.

"You all right?" His voice sounded relieved. The woman, having picked herself up, now began to run. In a trice, the long-legged James had overtaken her, was shaking her soundly.

"Little sap!" Sandra heard him saying. "Didn't I tell you?"

She could hear angry sobs, a protesting murmur. Hetty! It was Hetty who had been her captor, whose burning glance of hate had eaten into her very flesh.

Recovering her composure completely, Sandra swung herself over the side of the car.

"Would anybody," she inquired coolly, "tell me what this is all about?"

James turned. The habit of respect was strong but even Sandra could catch the note of dislike.

Grudgingly he muttered, "You threw us out without jobs. You wouldn't give us even a recommend. It wasn't our fault."

Sandra flushed. "She was impudent. She didn't deserve it."

James put a restraining hand on Hetty, whose lunge forward boded no good to Sandra. The man, her original captor, had by this time disappeared, drifted into the darkness somewhere.

"You better not talk that way," James salid defensively to Sandra. "You better be glad I came along in time to save you. When she" (he indicated the struggling Hetty) "gets a mad on she's a sure enough wildcat. She was bound to get even."

"I'm not goin' to let her off like this, so easy," panted Hetty. "She was sweet on you. She tried to get her hooks into you and when she couldn't she gave us both the air."

James intervened. "You know as well as I do, Miss Lawrence, we can't get jobs without we have a recommend."

"They didn't want that—they wanted money," Sandra informed him icily. "They've sent a note to my father demanding $50,000."

James roared. "Honest, Hetty, did you do that?"

The girl nodded, defiant.

"You little nit-wit!" He whirled on her. "Do you know what a mess you can get us into? You and that no-count cousin of yours."

"I don't care," Hetty said sullenly. "I said I'd get her and I did. She's not as smart as she thinks she is. Anyhow we got to go through with it now. She knows who we are and she'll get the police after us if we let her go. Don't be such a chicken heart, Jim. She doesn't care what happens to us. Why should we care about her? She'd let us starve to death."

There was danger in the atmosphere. Brooding hatred. The smoke of revenge. Two pairs of eyes stared at the girl in the Paris frock.

"What good is she anyway?" Hetty raved. "Never does a hand's turn. Makes mischief wherever she goes. What right's she got to live?"

Sandra saw something flash in the darkness. She heard a muffled report. She watched, fascinated, the struggling figures.

James turned his head sharply. "Get our of here," he remarked. "Run for your life. And if you tell about this night—if you get Hetty into trouble—you'll be sorry for it, that's all."

Sandra ran, stumbling in the ruts, almost sobbing. Briers tore her thin stockings and once she fell into a pool of ooze, sinking to her ankles.

At last she reached the main road, a bedraggled figure. Which way to turn? She did not know, so took the right, hoping it led toward home. Her thin shoes were hopelessly inadequate. Her body felt as if it had been beaten.

Several cars passed, their lights almost blinding her. Her breath was torn from her now in gusty sobs, every one burning her parched throat. On and on she stumbled along this road that seemingly had no turning.

At last she heard the purr of a motor going in the same direction. She was frightened rather than relieved, hearing men's shouts. What new horrors did this nightmare hold for her?

"Sandra!"

She heard her father's joyous shout just before she lost consciousness.

BRAVES GAIN HALF GAME BY BLANKING CARDINALS

CANTWELL GIVES CARDS BUT FOUR HITS TO WIN, 3-0

Braves Sweep Series as Giants Split Twin Bill With Pirates

BOSTON, Aug. 26.—(AP)—The pennant striving Boston Braves, behind the four-hit pitching of Ben Cantwell, today shut out the St. Louis Cardinals, 3 to 0, to sweep the three-game series and extend their winning rush to seven straight.

Cantwell

The game was a pitching battle between Cantwell and Jesse Haines, with the former having the edge. Haines, however, allowed but one earned run and worked well enough to win a majority of games.

The Braves were perfect defensively. Several brilliant plays were turned in by Maranville, Urbanski and Cantwell and as a result not a Cardinal player saw third base. All of the St. Louis hits were singles, two being made by Pepper Martin.

The victory was the 18th turned in by Cantwell this season against seven defeats. It gave the Braves a clean bill in their last two series, four games from the Pittsburgh Pirates and three from St. Louis.

Four Teams Play Double Header at Clayton Today

CLAYTON, Aug. 26.—(Special)—What should prove a rare treat for baseball fans of this area are the contests scheduled for Sunday afternoon in Clayton between the Clayton Ramblers and the Jonesville Lions and the Vidalia Tigers and the Tensas Tigers.

The initial game of the twin bill will begin at 2 o'clock. Clayton, Jonesville, Vidalia and Waterproof all boast fast clubs and two keenly contested games are expected by the fans of this area who are expected to be out in large numbers for the double bill.

A challenge is being issued to the Natchez Indians by the Waterproof Tigers who have beaten the majority of the north Louisiana clubs. Manager Charlie Testa hopes to engage the Natchezians in a game or a series of games before the present season ends. The Tigers plan to play through September and part of October and Natchez, too, is said to [illegible] games scheduled for several [illegible]

Five Teams to Compete in Swimming Meet Here Today

First North Louisiana Tourney to Be Held at Monroe Pool

In the first meet of its kind ever held here, swimmers of north Louisiana and a team from Henderson, Texas, will compete in the north Louisiana swimming tournament to be held at the salt water natatorium, beginning this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Teams from Shreveport, Bastrop, Homer, Monroe, and Henderson, Texas, will be represented, with the out-of-town teams reported to be sending strong women's teams. Bastrop will enter a team of five or six girls. Henderson will enter a complete team and Shreveport will have a good representation. Monroe's entry in the feminine events will be Miss Eileen MacKinnon.

Monroe aquatic stars have been working out at the natatorium for the past week and wound up their training yesterday with light practice swims and diving.

Spring board fancy diving, in which Monroe is expected to give its best show, will find Fred Williams and Everett "Ickey" Harper ready to go again. Williams and Harper, with John Schneider, manager of the club this year, were undefeated as a team last year, and Williams was high point man in every meet he entered last season.

Monroe's first swimming team, organized last season by Police Officer Charles Sisson, gave the locals some experienced material to begin with this year and out of last year's crop of swimmers, four have returned again to bolster the team's chances. These include A. V. Smith, captain of the team last summer, and his brother Jim Smith, and Clarence "Shorty" Bell and L. W. Maloncon.

The new members of the team have shown promise and most of the swimming will rest on Jack Knowles. George Bubb, Jim Baynham, Curtis Johnson, George Aubert and Henry LeDoux are also dependable swimmers.

The preliminaries and qualifying trials will begin at 3 p. m. and will be followed by the diving events. Finals in swimming will begin about 7:30 o'clock.

No awards will be made as the meet is purely for the advancement of water sports in north Louisiana and with the prospect in view of putting on a greater tournament next year with increased popularity in various north Louisiana towns and a probable joining with A A. U. circles.

The list of events and Monroe entries as announced by Manager Schneider are:

50 meter free style: "Shorty" Bell, A. V. Smith.

100 meter free style: "Shorty" Bell, Jim Smith.

100 meter breast stroke: Jim Baynham, George Bubb, Jack Knowles.

220 yard free style: Jack Knowles, L. W. Maloncon, Mike John.

200 meter relay: Jack Knowles, "Shorty" Bell, A. V. Smith, Jim Smith, Curtis Johnson, George Aubert, Henry Ledoux

50 meter back stroke: Paul Martin. Women—50 meter free style: Eileen MacKinnon.

50 meter back stroke: Eileen MacKinnon.

Diving—Williams and Harper.

Officials for the meet will be Barney Oakland, Parker McComb and Percy Brown, coach at Neville high school.

NATS LOSE CLOSE GAME TO INDIANS

Ferrell Outlasts Five Senator Hurlers to Win in Eleventh

CLEVELAND, Aug. 26.—(AP)—The pace making Washington Senators lost an 11-inning struggle with the Cleveland Indians 5 to 4 today as Wesley Ferrell outlasted five Washington pitchers to turn in his 101st major league pitching conquest.

Ferrell

Burnett's triple, his fourth hit of the game, enabled the Tribe to tie the score at 4-all in the ninth. Then in the eleventh Galatzer singled and scampered over the plate with the winning run on Vosmik's single, also his fourth of the day.

Manush went hitless in five trips to the plate after hitting safely in 33 consecutive games.

Ferrell helped out his own cause with a home run, his sixth of the season. No one was on base.

The announcement was made by Manager Ed Price of the Cats, and the Winnfield players who have been here with the local club have returned to their homes Ferriday had a fair season after a poor start and won the majority of their games with neighboring clubs.

Golf Gossip from the LOCKERROOMS

Cramer Haas, one of the youngsters playing at the Country club, rang the bell this week when he broke par by two strokes over the nine-hole route, going around the course in 34 shots. He posted a 74 for the 18 holes. This boy is right on top of his game and is hitting all his shots on the button. Cramer is going to be heard from in the Labor day tournament this year.

Among visiting golfers in Monroe this week, who played practice rounds over the Country club course in preparation for the big tournament next week were: Horace Lee, Ed Shamblin, E. A. Buckner, R. L. Bailey, R. R. Taylor and L. J. Kathan from Tallulah; Mark H. Brown, Lake Providence; J. C. Baker, Ruston; Ralph Wheat, Paul Stinson and H. P. Niel, Jonesboro; James B. Tisdale, Jr., Fred Haas, Jr., Arthur Ross, R. E. Graham and Osbourne Rawlinson, Bastrop. A large delegation from Alexandria will be in town today to look over the layout in advance of the tournament. Judging by response from invitations mailed out, this year's event will bring to Monroe about 50 golfers from out of town and indications are that there will be one hundred or more entrants on the card by Saturday night, which is the end of the qualifying period.

In the national open of 1931, Burke and Von Elm tied for first place. In the open of '32, Sarazen won with Cruickshank and Perkins tied for second. In the open of '33 all five of these players finished more than 16 strokes back of the winner. This gives you a rough idea of the voltage of one Bob Jones, who was practically a sure shot for "one-two" in the pen throughout a span of 12 years that he was in competitive golf.

Today is bargain day at the Country club course. A bottle of beer will be given to every golfer who scores a birdie. One golfer will be limited to three bottles. However, the limit will be placed upon the number of birdies he may score. (Anyone turning in more than three birdies can have the clubhouse.)

AMATEURS IN BAD

The A. A. U. has about lost patience with amateur boxing and unless the boys turn over a new leaf, the A. A. U. is going to wash its hands of the whole mess.

We had a long chat with L. di Benedetto, secretary of the Southern A. A. U., in New Orleans last week and Benny assured us that amateur boxing is being given its last chance to clean house—or else.

"Boxing has cost the A. A. U. more money, time and worry than any other sport," Benny said, "and it's high time the club promoters began abiding by our rules if they expect to retain their affiliations with the A. A. U."

The Amateur Athletic Union has been severely criticized because of some of the practices of the various clubs which stage boxing bouts under the sanction of the A. A. U. And the A. A. U. is not at fault, unless they can be blamed for too lax supervision.

Real amateur boxers have been rare, particularly in the larger cities. It has been the common practice to award medals to boxers for their victories and then the medals are bought back by the clubs. The medals are returned to the jeweler, who erases the inscription on the back and the medals are ready to be awarded again.

Benny, incidentally, has suspended several New Orleans boxers until they can "find" their medals. He ordered them to produce the tokens won during the past six months and few of the boxers have been able to dig them up. They won't be allowed to fight again until they produce the medals.

It is hoped that the A. A. U. will go the limit in its effort to clean up the amateur boxing game. The rules clearly define an amateur and there isn't any excuse for an athlete overstepping the bounds. If the clubs refuse to clean house, the A. A. U. would do well to cast boxing aside and concentrate on some other sport.

THOSE MAJOR RACES

The races in the major leagues have reached the stage where the boys are getting out their pencils and figuring the mathematical chances of the various teams. That means that almost everybody concedes the two pennants to the Senators and the Giants and the dopesters are beginning to compare the strength of these two teams in the World Series.

Washington, for instance, has reached that strategic position in the American league chase which permits them to play .500 ball the rest of the season and still tie the second-place Yankees should they win three out of every four of their remaining games. The Senators have won 80 and lost 41 and have 33 games to play. The Yanks, who have won 71 and lost 48, have 36 remaining games.

The Giants hold almost the same advantage over the fast-stepping Boston Braves.

So the attention of the experts has turned to the World Series. Tom Kearney, of St. Louis, and other big betting commissioners already have posted their odds. Kearney has priced the Senators at 7 to 10 in the series, with the Giants held at even money. Indications are that the Nats will be quoted as low as 1 to 2 when the series opens.

This is the tenth consecutive year that the American league entry has entered the World Series a popular favorite to turn back the National loop standard bearer. Not since 1923, when John McGraw's Giants were held at 3 to 5 to make it three straight over the Yanks, has a representative of the older circuit been installed betting choice in the annual baseball classic.

Bill Terry apparently is going to have a great opportunity to regain some of the National league's lost prestige this fall but there are plenty of folks who'll bet you he can't do it.

IN THE BIG SIX

Speaking of close races, this last-half battle in the Big Six Industrial league is getting tighter every day.

Bastrop started off at a whirlwind clip but the Kraftmen struck a snag this past week and dropped two double headers. As a result, the Tallulah Indians are just two and a half games out of first place, with nine more games remaining on the schedule.

Oak Grove, winner of the first half, is tied with the Tallulah club and Farmerville, the newest member of the circuit, trails Oak Grove by two and a half games. Thus it is possible for the Farmers to finish on top, despite the fact that the season is almost over.

There are four strong teams finishing the Big Six schedule this year and they're playing a good brand of baseball. As a result, large crowds have turned out at all four towns and each club will wind up the season in good shape.

BONURA, DARROW 'MOST VALUABLE'

Dallas First Baseman and Galveston Pitcher Receive Awards

HOUSTON, Tex., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Zeke Bonura, hard-hitting first baseman of the Dallas Steers, and Lefty Darrow star left-hander of the Galveston Buccaneers, have been voted the Texas league's most valuable player and most valuable pitcher by the loop's sports writers.

Ralph A. Anderson, sports editor of the Houston Press, who supervised the balloting, announced the result of his tabulation today.

Bonura won 32 points to nose out Carey Selph, manager and second baseman of the Houston Buffalos, by five points. Tony Governor, Galveston centerfielder, was third with four points.

Darrow won over Ed (cave man) Greer, lanky Houston pitcher, receiving 26 points to Greer's 14. Fabian Kowalik, young San Antonio hurler, was third among the pitchers with eight points.

Bonura and Darrow will receive $50 checks from the Texas league in addition to trophies donated by Charles Mangold, Dallas hotel man and fan. The presentations will be made at a time to be resignated by Alvin J. Gardner, president of the league.

Thirty-five players were mentioned by the sports writers of eight cities. Not one city in the league failed to give Bonura a vote while only one city failed to vote for Selph in the players' division.

Jerome (Dizzy) Dean, who won the honor in 1931, and Hank Greenberg, who won last year, have graduated from Houston and Beaumont, respectively, to the major leagues, Bonura and Darrow, in the opinion of many observers, are headed in the same direction.

R. M. Castle and Martin Barnett of Meridian captured the doubles title by defeating Jim Collins of Meridian, and Billy Simpson of Sumner, 6-1, 2-6, 6-0, 6-3, in a match featured by net volleys and smashes.

JOE KOPECKY TO WRESTLE INDIAN

Chief Little Wolf Draws Tough Foe for Thursday Mat Program

Chief Little Wolf, Osage Indian from Oklahoma, who wasn't satisfied with defeating Cowboy Roland on last week's wrestling card, but who found it necessary to come back into the stadium and pick a fight with Wild Red Berry, the "Kansas Panther," while the latter was wrestling Bobby Wallas, is likely to have his hands full next Thursday night, without taking on any side fights. According to announcement by Promoter Guy Owen, Little Wolf has been signed to meet Joe Kopecky.

On his last appearance here, Kopecky disposed of George Ligosky, the bearded Russian, in a match in which he displayed plenty of rough stuff. Kopecky looks about as hard as nails and he acts that way too when he starts working on his opponents. On account of his lanky build, he is much taller than most of the foes of his weight he meets and this gives him an advantage when the wrestlers begin slugging and suffing each other around.

Last Thursday night Little Wolf heckled Berry and coached his opponent so much that Berry finally jumped out of the ring and began mixing it with the Indian. The two were separated by police, but Little Wolf appeared to be in a pugnacious mood and willing to take on half a dozen if necessary. On account of this fact, the promoters decided to furnish him an opponent who could give him all he wanted in one match. They believe they have done so by matching him with Kopecky.

Kopecky has wrestled here on a number of occasions and has not yet lost a match. If he appears to be getting in a bad way he manages to dispose of his opponent by some unique method. On the last occasion he beat Ligosky by applying flying whisker locks on him in rapid succession. The Russian became so befuddled from being thrown around by his whiskers that he became an easy victim.

Hitchcock Given Place on Auburn's Coaching Staff

AUBURN, Ala., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Jimmy Hitchcock, Auburn's all-America half back last fall, has been named a member of the football coaching staff at his alma mater.

The 1932 Auburn captain has been playing professional baseball with the Wheeling, West Virginia team of the middle Atlantic league since he was graduated in June.

Hitchcock's valiant backfield post will be one of the hardest for Head Coach Wynne to fill this year but Jimmy's aid in drilling his successor should prove valuable.

CADDO BOXERS TO MEET LOCAL CLUB

Strong Shreveport Squad Shows at Roosevelt Stadium Tuesday

Mittmen of the Monroe Athletic club tie up with the Lowe-McFarland post boxing team of the American Legion of Shreveport here Tuesday night at 8:30 o'clock at Roosevelt stadium, V. C. Bruscato, manager of the local club, announced last night.

The Shreveport club will present a rugged group of boxers with plenty of experience, some champions and former champions.

The main scrap of the night will again feature "Sad Sam" Jones, lightweight champion of north Louisiana, and Buster Steward reputed to be a "tough boy." Steward's record includes victories over Kenny Devereaux of Monroe and Frank Cain of Rayville.

Another good battle should be the engagement between Herbert Sorey, of Rayville, boxing for Monroe, and Tiny Klein, tri-state welterweight champion.

"Kid Lary" Knecht, interscholastic lightweight champion of 1932, will display his wares with T. W. McInnis and Monroe McNaughton, Rayville lad, fighting for Monroe, will meet Otis Bogard in the 124-pound class.

LeRoy Francis and "Mule" Hooks are both bidding for a battle with Arthur Marlowe, 160. Hooks showed promise of being a powerful boxer when he won by a knockout over J. B. Morris of Fort Benning, Ga., here last Tuesday. Francis has been defeated previously by the Shreveport boy.

LeRoy Latham, Monroe's 134 pounder, who has always shown a willingness to mix with any comer within a reasonable weight but has been outpointed in two starts for the locals, will be matched against Raymond Blandino. Blandino defeated "Sad Sam" Jones during the Southern A A. U. championship battles this year but was said to have been unwilling to meet Sam Tuesday.

MRS. MOODY DEFAULTS TO HELEN JACOBS IN FINAL

MISS JACOBS FAR AHEAD WHEN STAR IS FORCED TO QUIT

Back Injury Causes Dramatic Ending of National Net Final

By Alan Gould
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Unbeaten and rarely even challenged for seven previous years, the great Helen Wills Moody yielded today to the sturdy rush of her California rival, Helen Jacobs, and growing physical distress by defaulting in the third set of their final match for the women's tennis championship of the United States.

Facing apparently certain defeat for the first time since 1926 in singles competition and on the verge of collapse, the result of wearing a back brace that troubled her right hip and leg, Mrs. Moody defaulted to Miss Jacobs after losing the first three games of the final set. The scores of a match that was hard-fought and often brilliant, for two sets were 8-6, 3-6, 3-0, default.

The finish was a dramatic disappointment to the gallery of 7,000 excited spectators. Nevertheless they accorded an ovation to Miss Jacobs, who rose to her greatest heights by outplaying Mrs. Moody for the first time in her career and captured the national championship for the second successive year. They had met seven previous times in championship play and this was the first occasion on which Miss Jacobs so much as won a single set.

Mrs. Moody also withdrew from the doubles final, in which she was paired with Elizabeth Ryan, thereby bringing to an unparalleled conclusion a national tournament that was delayed exactly a week by rain in reaching its sensational finale.

This automatically gave the doubles championship to the dashing British pair, Betty Nuthall and Freda James.

Mrs. Moody was at first determined to come back and try to play in the doubles but after a half hour's rest in the West Side club house, she decided against further competition and wrote the following statement:

"In the third set of my singles match I felt as if I were going to faint, because of the pain in my back and hip and a complete numbness of my right leg.

"The match was long and by defaulting I do not wish to detract from the excellence of Miss Jacobs' play.

"I feel that I have spoiled the finish of the national championship, and wish that I had followed the advice of my doctor and returned to California.

"I still feel that I did right in withdrawing because I felt that I was on the verge of a collapse on the court."

Mrs. Moody arose in the lead and dropped a sensational battle with her sister Helen to defeat in the first set in which the defending champion's championship strategy and steadiness under the heaviest baseline cannonading proved a decisive combination. She secured the match with a fine rally at the close of the second set but it was obvious the effort of covering court and sustaining the long rallies was beginning to tell on the older girl.

Miss Jacobs, wearing blue-striped shorts and still somewhat dazed by the sudden turn of events, soon was beaming in response to the gallery's ovation. She participated alone in the victory ceremony, received custody of the championship cup again and acknowledged "the happiest moment of my life."

The girl who has always merely been "Helen the Second," deserved the full fruits of a gallantly won triumph. From the outset she played with a determination and resourcefulness that soon made it certain the seven-times former champion was in for the battle of her life, under any circumstances. She was equally as steady as Mrs. Moody from the baseline, her service was even more effective and she volleyed or smashed superbly whenever she had the opportunity.

The match was marked by a succession of close line decisions many of which drew demonstrations of disapproval from the gallery. The most conspicuous incident occurred in the seventh game of the second set, with the score 3-all in games, when a point was called against Mrs. Moody on a point that palpably was in her favor. After the spectators' protest subsided and the umpire sustained the linesman's verdict, Miss Jacobs purposely double-faulted to make the score 15-30. Subsequently she lost the game in a deuce battle, then the next two games and the set, as Mrs. Moody applied the pressure effectively.

Until she weakened in the final set, Mrs. Moody gamely withstood the challenge and forcing tactics of her rival. Miss Jacobs had set point four times in the first set before she won it. In the tenth game, Miss Jacobs led 5-4 in games and 40-30 in points on Mrs. Moody's service but the latter made it deuce on an overhead smash and took the next two points to make it 5-all. Again, in the 14th game of a set that lasted 35 minutes, Mrs. Moody twice saved herself at set point before finally yielding.

When the one-time devastating power of her baseline game failed to penetrate consistently Miss Jacobs' defense or confidence, Mrs. Moody had few weapons left. She walked off the courts beaten for the first time since she lost a three-set battle to Mrs. Molla Mallory in the finals of the eastern championships at Rye, N. Y., in 1926. That year, because of illness, she withdrew from the nationals.

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 26.—(AP)—The ill-fated women's national championship tennis tournament was brought to an abrupt conclusion today by an accident to Alice Marble of San Francisco, who was struck in the left eye by a ball and painfully hurt while substituting in an exhibition doubles match for Helen Wills Moody.

Miss Marble was playing with Elizabeth Ryan against the British combination of Betty Nuthall and Freda James, new national doubles champions by default. Standing close to the net the California girl was unable to get her racquet in front of a hard-hit drive from Miss Nuthall's bat and the ball hit her in the eye, knocking her to the ground.

Miss Marble and Miss Ryan had won the first set, 6-4, and games were 4-all in the second set when the accident happened. This gave the British girls their second victory of the day by default.

Mac Smith Increases Lead In Western Open Tourney

Arrest of Gangster Golfer Enlivens Second Round at Olympia Fields

By Paul Mickelson
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

OLYMPIA FIELDS, Ill., Aug. 26.—(AP)—As a stunned gallery watched the law pick up Vincent Gebardi, a contestant known to police as "Machine Gun Jack" McGurn of Chicago gangland, in slipped MacDonald Smith, the old Scot from Carnoustie, with another par-wrecking score to increase his hold on the western open golf championship today.

Mac Smith

Swarming and milling around the club house as Gebardi was hustled away by three detectives on a vagrant charge, the gallery all but overlooked Mac but the competing field didn't. With his record tying score of 68 yesterday, he posted another of 71 shots for a 139 total to extend his lead at the half-way mark of the 72-hole title drive to two shots over Abe Espinosa, dimunitive Castillian from Chicago. Espinosa, a 69 shooter yesterday, scored a 72 today for 141. No one else was closer than seven shots from the 43-year-old veteran, now living at Nashville, Tenn.

The arrest of McGurn on the eighth hole of the swanky Olympia Fields club, number one course was the sensation of the day. Competing as an amateur, he was attempting to qualify when the detectives took him in custody but permitted him to finish his round. He was one under par through six holes but, angered at the "pinch," blew up completely thereafter and chased a photographer who tried to take his picture.

More than 200 golfers tried to catch the methodical Mac today without success as he made par look almost foolish with his true wood shots and dead approaches. On 14 holes, he had a chance to snare birdies but his putts just wouldn't go down. With any kind of putting luck, Mac might have posted a 65 instead of a 71, which broke par on the number one layout by a shot. He was out in 35 and back in par 36.

Espinosa played a steady game all day today on the number four course, a par 70, but his magic putted failed him at crucial times.

Deadlocked for third place with 36-hole totals of 146 tonight were seven others, some pre-tournament favorites and others members of the dark horse ranks. They were Ed Dudley, of Wilmington, Del., Ryder cup player; Harry Cooper, veteran Chicagoan and Ralph Guldahl, St. Louis, 1933 national open runner-up, who had even 73's; Gunnar Nelson, Rockford, Ill., and Massie Miller of Noblesville, Indiana, also with 73's; Guy Paulsen, Ft. Wayne, Indiana, and Joe Paletti, Chicago.

Johnny Lehman of Chicago led the amateurs with a 148 total. Other low scores and their totals were Byron Nelson, Texarkana, Texas, 70-77—147; Jim Fogerty, St. Louis, 74-73—147; Tommy Armour, Chicago, 75-73—148, and Jake Frassezke, Jackson, Mich., 76-72—148.

It took a score of 155 to land among the low 64 scorers, who will continue the championship fight for 36 holes over the number four course tomorrow.

Gil Morrow, a Chicago amateur, also supplied a thrill for the field by scoring the second hole-in-one in the tournament's history, sinking his ace on the 150-yard sixth hole on the fourth course.

RED SOX TRIM BROWNS

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 26.—(AP)—The slugging and hurling of Lloyd Brown gave the Boston Red Sox an 8 to 1 victory over the St. Louis Browns in the first of a five game series today. The left hander drove one of George Blaeholder's offerings out of the ball park in the sixth inning, scoring behind two mates. In the eighth he drove in two additional runs with a double. Previously he had singled.

Brown was deprived of a shutout when Reynolds doubled in the ninth and Wells, who ran for him, galloped home on an infield out and Melillo's long fly.

Houston Shooters Win Grand American Finals

VANDALIA, Ohio, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Shooters from Houston, Texas, monopolized the North American Open Trapshooting championship today, the final event of the 34th annual Grand American tournament.

E. C. Woodward, of Houston, won first by breaking 199 out of 200 targets. Second place was finally won by Tommy Lovett, another Houston marksman, after he and Charley Morgan of Corning, Ohio, the Buckeye state champion, shot at 200 extra targets. Lovett broke 100 straight while Morgan shattered 99.

E. C. McQuitty, of Danville, Ill., firing from the 19-yard line, won the Vandalia open with a score of 99. Michael Canterino of New York City, was second with 98 from the 17-yard line and George Tony of Indianapolis, third with 97. J. H. Wantling of New York was fourth with 96.

Directors of the American Trapshooting association announced the reappointment of John Collins as general manager.

Query Protests Sports' Victory Over Governors

SHREVEPORT, La., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Claiming his team was handicaped in the ninth inning due to the session being played in semi-darkness, Wray Query, manager of the Tyler Governors, protested the victory of the Sports over his club today and asked that the game be thrown out, and a doubleheader be scheduled for tomorrow afternoon.

Query says the umpire should have halted the contest and that his club was not able to see the ball, resulting in many hits falling safe and four runs being made to give Shreveport a 8 to 7 victory.

The contest did not start until 4:45 p. m. due to rain.

CUBS, PHILS DIVIDE

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 26. — (AP) — Chicago came from behind to defeat the Phillies 6 to 4 in the first game of a double header today. Again in the second game the Cubs rallied in the ninth frame and barely missed turning the trick for a second time. Burt Shotton sent in three hurlers and the Cubs were stopped with the bases full, 6 to 5.

Don Hurst's home run with two on the bases in the seventh featured the Phillies' nightcap triumph.

PIRATES STOP GIANTS

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—(AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates, rallying behind the five-hit pitching of their young southpaw Ralph Birkofer, and the veteran, Waite Hoyt, today snapped the league leading New York Giants' winning streak at eight games, but not before they had dropped their seventh straight in the first game of a double header.

After Carl Hubbell had outpitched Hal Smith to give the Giants the opening contest 2 to 1, the Pirates came back to win their first game of the series, taking the nightcap 7 to 2 as they blasted three New York hurlers for 13 hits.

The division of the double bill cost the Giants a half-game as the Boston Braves won their seventh successive game to reduce the Terrymen's lead to six and one-half games.

In the second game Finney cracked out a home run for Pittsburgh.

Both of the Giants' runs came as the result of homers. Mel Ott hit his 20th of the season and his third in two days in the second and Gus Mancuso added another in the eighth as a pinch hitter for Lugue.

KELVINATOR WILL HIKE PRICES SOON

Home Owners Urged to Purchase Electric Refrigerators Now

Only a few days more and Kelvinator prices go up—from $99.50 to $112.00 on the lowest priced model and a much greater increase on the larger models. That is why Harry St. John, president of the St. John Electric company, Kelvinator dealers, is urging Monroe home owners to take advantage of the present price.

If you are planning on buying an electric refrigerator this year, next year or in 1935, the wise thing to do is buy now. Prices will probably never again be so low or terms so generous. Kelvinator will actually pay for itself and you will get more pleasure out of it than anything you ever owned.

The big bargain days are almost over, according to Mr. St. John. Ever since March 21, Kelvinator prices have been sensationally low, the result of rock-bottom depression costs.

"We knew these unheard of prices couldn't last," Mr. St. John said. "We said so when they were first announced; we've said so repeatedly ever since. A small increase was necessary on June 28; now a greater one is coming September 1."

Costs have risen from 22 per cent to 102 per cent on many materials used by Kelvinator. That means that times are better, it means more money in circulation, more jobs and returning prosperity.

But it also means that, after September 1, your opportunity to buy a full-powered, standard Kelvinator at today's "bargain" prices will be gone, probably forever.

"That's why we say to you, 'If you can possibly do so, buy your Kelvinator now,'" Mr. St. John said. "We don't know of any other sound investment you can make that will pay such a big dividend so quickly."

You will save all the way from $12.50, on the beautiful standard Kelvinator which now sells for $99.50, to many times that amount on some of the larger models.

"Let us make this plain," Mr. St. John added, "Kelvinator is not boosting prices to a new high level on September 1; we are simply restoring the prices that were in effect last March before conditions made it possible to make a sensational but temporary reduction."

These old established prices were, and are, exceptionally low for the quality that is built into every Kelvinator. Except for the temporary prices that will be withdrawn September 1, they are the lowest in the entire 19 years of Kelvinator history.

You can make a substantial saving by seeing the St. John Electric company and placing your order now. The St. John company will be pleased to demonstrate Kelvinator's many advantages.

The St. John Electric company is located at 243 South Grand street, telephone 2047.

EXPERT METHODS AT WEIL PLANT

Local Cleaners Prepared to Handle Big Volume of Fall Trade

The first of September heralds the approach of the fall season, which means that heavier clothing will be needed for the cool nights that are approaching. It is suggested that you send your fall clothes to Weil Cleaners so that they may be cleaned, pressed and placed in first class condition for the first cool weather. D. B. CAUSES FOR AUTO ACCIDENTS LISTED

Fifteen Per Cent Cause Most Crashes, Says Insurance Man

The few menace the safety of the many, particularly in the operation of motor vehicles. The public as a whole conforms fairly well to recognized standards. This is true of dress, manners and general habits of life. It is 85 per cent true of the users of the highways, according to a bulletin issued by the Connecticut department of motor vehicles, according to S. M. McReynolds of McReynolds and Company, insurance agency, in a statement yesterday.

In other words, 15 per cent of the licensed motorists cause most of the automobile deaths, injuries, and damage to property. They are the drivers who are continually operating their cars differently from the other 85 per cent. Included in this undesirable class we find the roadhog, the speeder, the slow poke. Some of these are criminals whose driving, as well as their other acts, disregard the rights and safety of others. But most of this group comprises those who may be classed as non-criminal individualists.

Friendly advice, education, practice and teaching will get results in many instances. But as a background for improvement there must be developed a "community standard" of motor vehicle operation so generally recognized that infractions will bring the condemnation or ridicule of others, depending on the seriousness of the offense. In other words, the 85 per cent must, by their attitude to the 15 per cent, let it be known that they definitely disapprove of individual departures from safe driving standards.

"So, come on you 85 per centers," says Mr. McReynolds. "Bear down a bit on the 15 per centers and add to the efforts of the law enforcement agencies the endorsement of your personal attitude in the matter."

Mr. McReynolds also quotes statistics showing the 12 great causes of automobile accidents in 1932, as follows:

1. Inattention.
2. Failure to grant right-of-way and lack of caution at intersections.
3. Skidding.
4. Operating too fast for conditions.
5. Operating on the wrong side of the road.
6. Making the left turns improperly.
7. Following vehicles too closely.
8. Lack of care in approaching pedestrians.
9. Operating while under the influence of intoxicants.
10. Careless cutting in and out of traffic.
11. Defective equipment.
12. Failure to give distinct signals to indicate change of directions or procedure.

MOVING SEASON AGAIN AT HAND

Arrangements for Jobs Should Be Made With Monroe Transfer

In another few weeks, Monroe will again be in the midst of the annual moving season—the season that upsets a majority of the homes in the city and taxes all movng firms to capacity day and night.

It is a sincere suggestion that those residents who intend to move at the season should begin now to make their arrangement with moving firms so that they will be able to make the move without any inconvenience or disappointments.

For the past several years the Monroe Transfer and Warehouse company, Inc., has been in the local moving service. This department is under the supervision of men who have had many years of experience in the furniture storing, local and long distance hauling business.

There are some residents who seem to think that they practice economy when they engage a hauling firm or individual merely because the price for the job is lower than that submitted by reputable and reliable firms. They do not seem to consider the fact that there is liable to be some damage done to the furniture and household effects in the handling, and that this will result in disappointment and cost on the part of the owner in most cases. Many such firms and individuals are not financially responsible for the damage they do to the furniture and the owner is forced to pay this damage himself.

When the moving jobs awarded to the Monroe Transfer firm, or other like reputable concerns, there is no fear that such a thing might happen. To begin with, Monroe Transfer movers are all experienced, they have had many years of service in their work and know just how to handle furniture, how to load into the vans to eliminate possible damage and they have the proper equipment to do the job. Every job is done under the personal supervision of a foreman who knows just how it should be handled.

In the event that there should be any damage—it happens, even though this is an infrequent occurrence—the Monroe Transfer representative is right on the job to see that the proper adjustment is made on the claim. This firm is one of the largest of its kind in this section and is certainly financially responsible for the duties that it performs.

If you are going to move it is not too early now to make arrangements with the Monroe Transfer and Warehouse company Inc. to handle all details incident to the move. They will have their vans at your present home on a certain day at an appointed hour and their men will relieve you of any details whatsoever pertaining to the move. The furniture will be delivered to the new address and placed in the new home at your designation. They are located at 219 Walnut street and can be reached by telephoning 780.

QUALITY TOBACCO IN EL CUBO CIGAR

The El Cubo cigar is always able to maintain its position in the esteem of smokers because of the good quality of materials used, the popular price, the fact that they are made in Louisiana and primarily because they are always fresh and never stale.

Whenever you go to a cigar stand and ask for an El Cubo cigar you should notice the statement made on the label of the box, "Havana and Domestic Blend, Long Filler Cigar." That is for the quality and the material used. They are always good.

Then also the cigar has always been sold at so popular a price during the past 50 years that it has been made and put on the market of Louisiana and surrounding territory.

And in addition when it is an El Cubo that is bought the money stays right in Louisiana, where the Phil D. Mayer and Son, Ltd., operate and make the cigar.

Finally the dealers know what the demand for El Cubo will be. They realize that it is a "staple" product of the cigar industry and that its smokers do not change to any other brand. Consequently they are always able to keep a fresh supply on hand, a priceless boon to the smoker.

INSULL DETAINED IN NURSING HOME

charges, which are set forth in an indictment.

(A Chicago dispatch said United States District Attorney Dwight H. Green yesterday obtained release of a suppressed indictment charging Insull and his associates with violation of the federal bankruptcy act. Green said this offense was extraditable in Greece. A mail fraud indictment against Insull was regarded as non-extraditable.

Mr. Harness asserted that Greece was entitled only to judge the merits of the application for extradition.

Insull has been at liberty in Greece since December 27, 1932, when a court refused to extradite him.

In his statement the minister of justice said:

"The minister of foreign affairs transmitted to us a communication from the American legation requesting, in accordance with the eleventh clause of the Greco-American extradition treaty, the preventive detention of the American citizen Samuel Insull with the ultimate object of his extradition.

"We have transmitted this communication to the public prosecutor in order that he may act according to Greek law. The president of the court of appeal, to whom the dossier was sent, signed an order for Mr. Insull's detention which was duly carried out."

Mr. Insull is expected to add Deputy Pericles Rhalli to the legal counsel he already has.

ROOSEVELT SAYS NRA IS SUCCESS

the state legislature do it or substitute other representatives for them."

Startled for a moment, the huge crowd in front of the home of the president of Vassar suddenly broke into applause.

"And I am not talking Democratic politics," Mr. Roosevelt added as an interpolation of his prepared speech. "I am talking good old Dutchess county American principles."

Detailing his purposes in the recovery campaign, the president said: "Of course, it is true that your government hopes that the building up of wages that are starvation wages, and the shortening of hours of work in every part of the United States will result in a greater distribution of wages and an increase in the number of persons employed.

"It is true that we seek definitely to increase the purchasing power of the American people. It is true that we are definitely succeeding in this purpose and that the downhill drift of America has definitely turned and become an upward surge for America."

This expression for confidence also brought applause and cheers from the crowd stretching far out under the trees of the Vassar lawn. In concluding, once again the president departed from his prepared address to say "there is a unanimity among the people that I haven't seen since April, 1817, and we are going to bring this country back to better times."

Mr. Roosevelt declared that for the first time in history the nation "as a whole and regardless of party has approved drastic changes in the methods and forms of the functions of government without destroying the basic principles." He made it quite clear that his "neighbor" policy forbids monopolies, particularly in public utilities; child labor; starvation wages and long hours of work; and an unfair distribution of wealth. But he insisted all of this does not infringe upon personal liberty.

"It became unfair," he said, "to our neighbors if we sought to make reasonable profit from a monopoly in a service such as electricity or gas or railroad tickets which they all had to use.

"It became unfair to our neighbors if we tried to hire their children at starvation wages and long hours of work.

"Many years ago we went further in saying that the government would place increasing taxes on increasing profits because very large profits were, of course, made at the expense of the neighbors and should, to some extent at least, be used for the benefit of the neighbors."

Mrs. Roosevelt and the president's mother accompanied him, flanking him on the speaker's platform. Before going to the Vassar campus the presidential family motored through the decorated and crowded streets of Poughkeepsie from their nearby home at Hyde Park.

Dr. Henry Noble MacCracken, president of Vassar, introduced the president and spoke significantly about the people of Dutchess county who failed to give the president a majority last fall.

"Perhaps it is a Dutch inheritance that makes us a little less demonstrative than the others of the nation about some things," he said.

"Though we are slow to admit our errors in some ways, we do respect a real man and a real woman and that is why we are here today to welcome the president and Mrs. Roosevelt."

Mr. Roosevelt smiled and in the beginning of his speech said he thought the proposal of Dr. MacCracken to introduce Dutchess county to the nation was a "pious one."

MacCracken also spoke about "the whispers we heard here just about a year ago now" and added:

"A portrait is now being made of the president. It is the portrait of the America of 1933. The artist is putting into it the strength of character that is his own strength of character, the courage that is in his own heart, the man who is showing the nation the way back to recovery."

RECREATION NEWS COLUMN

This is a very sad time for all the children. Why? Don't you know? Next week is out last week of playground activities. We have had such a wonderful summer on the playgrounds. Just think, our city has conducted five children's playgrounds this summer.

And, dear readers, we want to tell you who has helped us so much to keep our play program going this summer. The P.-T. A. of the Twin Cities, the mayor of the city of Monroe, Arnold Bernstein, the two city commissioners, Mr. R. D. Swayze, and Mr. Dan Breard, the recreation board, Mr. Fred Williamson, Mrs. Charles Mitchell, Miss Julia Wossman, Dr. B. M. McKoin, Mr. G. B. Cooley, Rev. Thomas Jett, Mr. Isaac Lemle, Mr. G. B. Clarkson. And our national representative, Mr. Eswald Pettet. The civic clubs have all done lots for us, the Twilight league, the fire department, and in fact we the children of Monroe think that everybody has helped us in a big way, and we wish to thank everybody for all that has been done in our interest.

Most of all do we wish to thank each of our dear friends, the playleaders. They are so patient, so fair, so understanding, and work so hard to help us have a good time in the finest and best way. We learn what it is to be good sports and have a grand time playing together

This week we have all been planning to put on the best show at the puppet show to be given on Friday morning. We just know our playground will win because we have such a darling story about the three little pigs.

We have been making a scrap book on our playground and you should see how darling it is. Mary Sue Luckett is the star. And guess whose picture is in it? A little boy who has been coming to the playground ever since it opened. He started when he was so little the nurse had to bring him, but now he is one of the big boys and brings lots of other little boys. His name is J. L. Stern.

The Sherrouse playground made a scrap-book and put all kinds of pretty things in it. We all love Mr. E. L. Neville so much and because he is such a grand friend to all boys and girls we put his picture in the front of our book.

Barkdull handicraft:

We won the handicraft exhibit, sponsored by the Monroe recreation department of Monroe. Mrs. Surghnor supervised in this work, and helped each playground.

DICK EASON,
Barkdull Faulk Playground.

WELLS HAS LONG CRIMINAL RECORD

Finger-Print Report on Man Shows Convictions in Texas

When arrested here recently on a charge of operating a confidence game, C. J. Wells told members of the sheriff's department he had never been arrested before except on charges of fighting, Sheriff Coverdale said. A finger-print report received Saturday however, showed Wells has a criminal record extending back almost 15 years.

Wells was arrested on the last occasion on a charge of operating a confidence game. He was said to have obtained an automobile under false pretenses by giving a bogus check for $47.

The first record on Wells shows that he was received in the state penitentiary at Huntsville, Texas, on November 26, 1917, from Bexar county to serve a term of two years for theft of more than $50.

On July 25, 1922, he was arrested at Houston, Texas, for the theft of an automobile at Humble, Texas.

The next part of the record shows he was received at the state penitentiary at Huntsville on April 29, 1923, to serve five years for swindling.

He was arrested at Hot Springs, Ark., on June 24, 1927, on a charge of grand larceny, but disposition of this case was not shown.

On a third occasion he was sent to the Texas penitentiary, this time for passing a forged instrument, but the date was not shown.

He was taken into custody at Shreveport on August 23 for operating a confidence game.

HOTEL MEN TALK THEIR RATE CODE

Seymour Weiss Is Re-elected President of Association

ALEXANDRIA, La., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Endorsement of the proposed rate code for the southern states was made by the Louisiana Hotel association in convention here today. This code will be submitted to a meeting of the hotel operators of the southern states in Atlanta, Ga., within the next few days.

Baton Rouge was selected as the next convention city for the association and new officers were selected. Seymour Weiss, of New Orleans, was reelected as president.

The greater part of the two-day session which closed at noon today was spent in discussion of the code for hotel operators which is to be submitted to Washington for approval.

J. W. Stimpson, of New Orleans, was reelected secretary-treasurer of the organization.

Delegates for the southern states meeting are: Roy Heidelberg, Baton Rouge; Mrs. Emma Michie, Lake Charles and one more to be selected from New Orleans.

EFFORTS MADE TO GET LEVEE FUNDS

Mayors of Vicksburg and Monroe Work to Obtain Appropriation

On receipt of a letter from Mayor J. C. Hamilton of Vicksburg, Miss., relative to the proposed $50,000,000 appropriation for flood control work on the Mississippi river and its tributaries from the $3,300,000,000 public works funds, Mayor Arnold Bernstein of Monroe said yesterday he was exerting every effort in the movement to obtain the appropriation.

Mayor Bernstein, who is chairman of the Tensas Basin Flood Control association, said Monroe and this section of the state were vitally affected by the proposed appropriation, which was recommended for the present fiscal year by the chief of engineer of the United States army. The appropriation, part of which would go toward flood control work on Ouachita river and that part of the Mississippi which endangers northeast Louisiana, would not only provide protection from floods, but would provide jobs for some of the unemployed in this area, the mayor asserted.

Mayor Bernstein said he had been in constant touch with Secretary of the Interior Ickes, chairman of the public works board, other government authorities, and particularly with U. S. Representative Riley J. Wilson of the fifth district relative to the appropriation. The mayor said he had exerted every means of impressing on government officials in charge of flood control the imperative need of the appropriation for this section.

Urging an appeal for the appropriation be made to President Roosevelt and the public works board by state and local officials and chambers of commerce, Mayor Hamilton wrote:

"Being from a section of the country vitally interested in the completion of the flood control project at the earliest date, I have consulted with the senators and congressmen of this state, who are agreed on two points, first, that if we do not secure this $50,000,000 now, it is very uncertain when we will get it or how much; second, that it will be a long time before congress again passes any large appropriation measure. Our senators and congressmen in Mississippi, and I understand also in other flood control states, are accordingly actively working to secure not only the release of all flood control funds now temporarily impounded, but also to secure the $50,000,000 recommended to the public works board."

Mayor Bernstein said he planned to answer the letter immediately, assuring Mayor Hamilton of continued efforts in behalf of flood control.

Plans for Labor Day Parade Going Ahead

The Labor day parade plans are proceeding with unusual interest, stated C. B. Atkinson, chairman, Saturday night. The plans this year contemplate the featuring of the NRA program throughout the long line of cars to be represented. It is proposed that not only unions of the Monroe Trade Labor council be represented, but that all other business and professional men who are adhering to the president's program be included in the ranks.

It has been suggested that the occasion will afford an unusual opportunity to display NRA emblems, preferably from the sides of cars with the name of the firm affixed. It is believed that in this manner, much emphasis will be given locally to President Roosevelt's national recovery program.

The arrangements committee from the local labor council comprises, in addition to Mr. Atkinson, Alvin Hendry, C. C. Blanchard, and W. S. Adcock.

Those who seek for additional information as to the plans proposed, decoration of cars and other details, can obtain it from any member of the committee in charge.

LABOR
in the TWIN CITIES

By R. L. JOBE
of Typographical Union

Through courtesy of the management of The News-Star and The World, labor is to have a column every Sunday. This will be devoted to labor in Ouachita parish, with a sprinkling of interesting things pertaining to labor of a national scope.

News-Star-World Publishing Co., Thursday signed the temporary newspaper code, affecting some 75 workers in the Twin Cities, now is displaying NRA blue eagle.

I have attended quite a few pep meets in the parish in the past thirty days and if the enthusiasm displayed at these sessions is any measure of what the workers will do under the NRA things are going in a brighter direction locally; purses will be fatter.

Addressing an audience last Wednesday evening at the home of William Zinsmeister, bookbinder, Memphis Pressmen's R. F. Brown, stressed strict adherence to NRA, urged organization of every craft in the parish.

Following is a letter Central Trades and Labor Council received from Chamber of Commerce's S. H. McClary:

To whom it may concern:

The Monroe Trades and Labor Council will have their usual Labor day parade this year. It seems to the writer that this will be an unusual opportunity to display your NRA emblem. We suggest an automobile with a large emblem displayed on the sides, also the firm name.

Our interest in this matter is to, in every way assist in President Roosevelt's national recovery program.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE,
Monroe and West Monroe.
(Signed) By S. H. McClary.

Committees have been appointed and will endeavor to see and enlist every NRA merchant in Twin Cities in this big NRA and labor parade.

Emancipation Of Child Labor

Elimination of child labor in textile industry would appear to be sufficient justification for passage of National Industrial Recovery act, were there nothing else in its favor. It is hoped that employment in all industry of children will be made permanent before the expiration of the emergency life of the National Industrial Recovery act.

Prior to 1933 the child labor amendment to the constitution, submitted in congress in 1924, had been ratified by only six states— Arizona, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Montana and Wisconsin. This year nine other states have been added to the list—Illinois, Michigan, New Hampshire, New Jersey, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Ohio, Oregon and Washington—making fifteen states which have endorsed the constitutional amendment to prevent exploitation of children in industry. The approval of twenty-one more states will make the law a mandatory provision of the constitution.

Ice Water 5c Hold-Up Insurance 5c

Public antipathy toward sweatshop management is explained by such instances as this: Philadelphia investigation brought to light fact that girls working for $5 a week were docked 5 cents a day for ice water, another 5 cents a day for holdup insurance to protect company payroll. China was never like that.

"Yellow Dog" Contract Outlawed In Illinois

Illinois has joined the list of states debarring the use of "yellow-dog" contract, Governor Horner having failed to exercise prerogative of veto.

This is the first appearance of this column and the writer invites comments of anyone intersted in labor and its problems.

Everett Confers With Local Lions Saturday

Ed Everett, of Farmerville, district governor of Lions clubs, met with a committee from the Monroe Lions club Saturday afternoon to perfect plans for the organization of Group 2 of Lions clubs for north Louisiana. Group 1 was organized last Thursday night in Shreveport, and it is proposed to form the entire state into groups centering around the larger cities of the state.

Nine Lions clubs are comprised in the first group and six will be included in the Monroe area organization.

Mr. Everett announced that a date is to be set shortly for the holding of a ladies' night when the Farmerville club is to be host to the Monroe club membership.

CRASH IS PROBED AT WORLD'S FAIR

Three Sightseers Drown When Two Boats Collide in Lake

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—(AP)—A double investigation, by police and coast guardsmen, was under way today into a collision of two watercraft which cost the lives of three world's fair sightseers.

Both boats, the Miss Chicago, a speedboat which carried ten passengers and its pilot, and the cabin cruiser, the Visitor, with seven aboard, sank after their crash which occurred last night in Lake Michigan near the mouth of the Chicago river and about 500 feet from the coast guard station.

A lookout who saw the accident dispatched three coastguard boats and ten men who rescued all the Visitor's passengers and all but four of the speedboat's. Its pilot, Walter Pomper, was dragged to safety by the pilot of another speedboat which hurried up to aid.

Only one body was recovered, that of a woman apparently about 40 years of age. Coastguards dragged the lake for several hours seeking the others, believed to be a father and his young son. The body of a man recovered near the scene was at first thought to have been that of one victim but later rescue workers said they believed it was that of a transient who had drowned.

Pomper said the boats collided when the 28-foot cruiser crossed the path of his boat so quickly that he had no chance to swerve it out of danger. The cruiser was rammed amidship and nearly cut in half. Both craft went down immediately but the cruiser was later towed to the guard station.

Federal authorities held Pomper for the inquest while police sought to question Anthony J. O'Malley, an attorney, who is owner of the Visitor. He was piloting a party of friends on a trip along the lake shore when the accident happened. The speedboat was returning with its load of passengers from the fair to the Michigan avenue bridge.

None of the speedboats' passengers had registered and because of this it was feared that identification of the victims might require considerable time.

For over 20 years, "Old Faithful," a geyser in Yellowstone Park, has spouted at average intervals of 65 minutes.

To Keep Same Lockboxes In New Federal Building

All persons who have lock boxes in the present postoffice are to be assigned boxes in the new federal building that will bear the same numbers as at present so far as possible, it was announced by acting Postmaster James R. Wooten Saturday.

In fully 90 per cent of the cases it will be possible to do so, this official stated. In cases where this is impossible, it will be due to the fact that there will be a few boxes eliminated in the new building in order to provide for partitions and sections.

Mr. Wooten stated that many business men have been considerably worried lest they be compelled to accept boxes bearing different numbers than those that they have had for years and which they regard as a business asset.

The new building will have 1,913 lock boxes, compared with 1,015 such boxes in the present building. Provision has been made to care for the requirements of a city of fully 50,000 people, Mr. Wooten stated.

Many people of Monroe have had the same lock boxes in the postoffice ever since the building was opened about 40 years ago.

If your elephant wants to ride on top
IT'S ALL RIGHT WITH A CHEVROLET

CHEVROLET We didn't actually plan on elephants when we chose the bodies for the new Chevrolet. But we did choose bodies rigid enough, and strong enough, to support six tons of elephant or anything else you can name. Fisher bodies . . . steel bodies plus a hardwood frame . . . exactly the same type of bodies used on all 12 and 16-cylinder cars. Steel alone is not enough to make you as safe and secure as we want you to be in a Chevrolet. A steel body, welded into a solid wall of protection plus resilient hardwood reinforcing to take up stress, absorb shocks and prevent the steel from following its natural tendency to buckle under pressure makes the sturdiest body of all—the kind used on the Chevrolet, and on no other low-priced car. Remember that when you buy a car. Be sure to get all you pay for . . . the super-safety of a steel-plus-wood Fisher body.

HOW SMITH SAVED JAMESTOWN

FACING FAMINE IN A STRANGE, WILD LAND, SURROUNDED BY SAVAGE FOES, THEIR NUMBERS DEPLETED BY DISEASE AND INDIAN ARROWS, THE STRICKEN SETTLERS OF JAMESTOWN LOOKED TO CAPTAIN SMITH TO SAVE THE COLONY. DARING AND RESOURCEFUL, SMITH WAS EQUAL TO THE EMERGENCY. THE MOST PRESSING NEED OF THE COLONISTS WAS FOOD. —•

SMITH WENT TO THE PASPAHEGHS FOR CORN, BUT THE INDIANS, HOSTILE AND KNOWING THE DIRE NEED OF THE SETTLERS, REFUSED TO SELL ANY FOOD EXCEPT AT AN EXORBITANT PRICE, DEMANDING A SWORD OR A GUN IN TRADE FOR A LITTLE CORN.

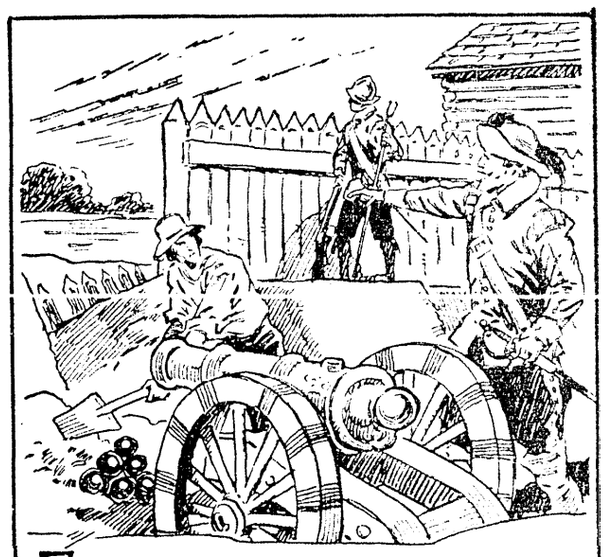
EXASPERATED AND DESPERATE, SMITH FIRED ON THE REDSKINS AND DROVE THEM HEADLONG INTO THE WOODS. THEN HE SEIZED THE CORN AND RETURNED TO JAMESTOWN.

TO SHOW THEIR CONFIDENCE IN HIM THE COLONISTS ELECTED SMITH A MEMBER OF THE COUNCIL. LATER, UPON THE DEATH OF RATCLIFFE, WHO HAD SUCCEEDED WINGFIELD, SMITH BECAME PRESIDENT OF THE COUNCIL AND VIRTUALLY A DICTATOR. —•

THE STURDY CAPTAIN TOOK PROMPT MEASURES TO MAKE THE COLONY SECURE AND SELF-SUSTAINING. FIRST, HE MADE ALL THE LAZY "GENTLEMEN" GO TO WORK. FOUR ACRES OF TIMBER WERE CLEARED AND PLANTED WITH CORN. —•

NOT ACCUSTOMED TO MANUAL LABOR, SOME OF THE "GENTLEMEN ADVENTURERS" DID NOT TAKE KINDLY TO THE HARD WORK NOR TO SMITH'S RIGID DISCIPLINE. BLISTERED HANDS EVOKED AN OUTBURST OF PROFANITY "AT EVERY THIRD STROKE OF THE AXE."

SMITH QUICKLY "CURED" THIS. EVERY SWEARER ON HIS RETURN FROM WORK HAD A CAN OF COLD WATER POURED DOWN HIS SLEEVE FOR EACH OATH HE HAD UTTERED.



TO PROTECT THE SETTLEMENT FROM THREATENED ATTACKS BY THE INDIANS SMITH STRENGTHENED JAMES FORT AND ESTABLISHED A STRICT MILITARY ROUTINE. —•

MUCH OF THE SICKNESS OF THE COLONISTS COULD BE TRACED TO THEIR DRINKING THE BRACKISH, IMPURE WATER OF THE JAMES. SMITH HAD WELLS DUG, PROVIDING A HEALTHFUL WATER SUPPLY. —•

©, 1933, J. CARROLL MANSFIELD.

THOUGH SMITH'S EFFICIENT MEASURES IMPROVED CONDITIONS AT JAMESTOWN, THE SITUATION WAS STILL GRAVE AND FRAUGHT WITH PERIL. DEATHS AND DISEASE HAD GREATLY WEAKENED THE COLONY. —•

ON JANUARY 8, 1608, CAPTAIN CHRISTOPHER NEWPORT ARRIVED IN THE JAMES WITH RECRUITS AND PROVISIONS. HE FOUND THAT OF THE 100 COLONISTS HE HAD BROUGHT FROM ENGLAND SIX MONTHS BEFORE ONLY FORTY WERE STILL ALIVE. —•

AT THE GARDEN PARTY

Wide Brims and Sheer Fabrics Are Fashion's Choice for the Outdoor Tea

GOLF frocks, tennis dresses and spectator sports models are all very lovely and becoming, but when an invitation arrives to a rather swanky garden party, or perhaps when the best beau rings up and suggests a tea date at one of the most exclusive country clubs, then you find yourself rushing sadly about at the last minute looking for something just a bit more dressy than these. You know you really wouldn't feel at ease in a sweater-skirt-and-beret ensemble.

For this type of Summer entertainment you're required to "go feminine" with a bang. Ruffles and frills are all accepted and advised. Fluffy dresses of printed chiffon or crisp frocks of organdie are the thing. And your hat—well, it must be wide-brimmed, the crown rather flat, and trimmed with either flowers or ribbon.

You'll find it a refreshing change being all dressed up. Sports clothes do get a little monotonous. However, if you're such a stickler for simplicity that you flatly refuse to wear frills and furbelows, we have another suggestion for you. There is a variety of sheer crepe frocks in solid pastel tones that are fashioned on semi-tailored lines. Some of them add just a dash of femininity with a full sleeve, or a jabot collar, but they are simple enough to suit the most fastidious sports girl, and yet are appropriate for the Summer outdoor tea party. We have sketched a few of the most charming of these for you today.

SIMPLE IN LINE

EXTREMELY effective is the flesh-colored sheer crepe frock below. Note the full, three-quarter sleeves, stitched belt, and wide Ascot tie. The wide-brimmed hat of black shiny straw is faced and banded to match the frock. The white eyelet embroidered frock, with bouffant skirt and bertha bodice, is belted with bright blue velvet ribbon. A bunch of field flowers matches the trimming on the rough blue straw hat. The stunning wide-brimmed model in black Milan, shown at the lower right, features a square crown. It is banded with gros-grain ribbon in a soft shade of rose, with conventional flowers to match

CRISP AND DAINTY

WHITE organdie with an all-over embroidery pattern in gay red dots makes the crisp frock below. Wide flared ruffles are used over each shoulder, and red and black velvet ribbons make the belt. The wide-brimmed hat of white horsehair straw is trimmed with a black velvet band. Printed chiffon is used for the short-sleeved dress at the right. The three-quarter jacket has full, puffed sleeves. There is a wide crushed girdle, and two organdie flowers finish the neckline

Million Dollar Hairpin

By Gerald Mygatt

DAVE said, "I think he's a wet smack, if you want to know what I think."

Jane glowered at him. They were sitting side by side in the couch hammock on Jane's screened-in veranda. Dave had known Jane for years, and there were times, he was convinced, when what she needed most was an old-fashioned spanking.

Jane said, "Since when has my choice of boy friends become your business?"

"He's a wet smack, that's why it's my business. I don't like to see you getting all hot and bothered about a wet smack like him."

"Oh, so I'm getting all hot and bothered about him, am I?"

"Well, you're letting him come around here enough."

She smiled with a certain pointedness. "He doesn't come around here half as much as you do, Dave Garnsey — no, not a quarter as much. I suppose, just because I let you come around, you imagine I'm all hot and bothered about you."

But Dave shook his head. "I know you're not even bothered about me," he said, and added, "let alone hot."

Jane tossed her head, and the hair that was too short to be long and too long to be short flopped out sidewise, and Jane said, "Oh, bother! I forgot."

But Dave merely looked at the floor and bent automatically to pick something up. Expressionless he handed it to her, and she jabbed it back into place.

"There ought to be another one," she remarked.

"There always is," said he.

"Maybe it's on the couch," she suggested, and edged over for a better investigation.

"No, it's on the floor," said Dave and stopped again. "Why don't you glue the hairpins in?" he said.

Jane said, "I suppose you think you're being funny."

JUST then a car drove up in front of the house. It was a roadster, low and inviting, of a bright buff color with nickel and black trim. A tall young man in white flannel trousers and a buff-colored sports jacket leaped jauntily from the seat.

"Bad news travels fast," said Dave with a grimace at the car.

Dave didn't own a car. He was in his second year in Lawrence's law office, and what a second-year clerk earned was nothing.

The tall young man from the automobile came striding confidently across the lawn, his face fixed in a smile of greeting. Even Dave had had to admit to himself that Ellison Corroway was handsome, much too handsome to be hanging around a girl as impressionable as Jane Preslin was.

Now he flung open the screen door of the veranda, stood poised in the embrasure for a brief dramatic moment, then entered, bowing deeply over Jane's extended hand. To Dave he said briefly, "Oh, hello, Dave. You here?"

Dave said not too graciously: "No, I'm not here. I'm touring Russia."

Mr. Corroway ignored this, addressing himself strictly to Jane.

"I'd rather counted on taking you to the new film at the Central, but of course—" He let it go at that, terminating his sentence with merely a shrug.

"We can all three go," said Jane.

"Oh, no," said Mr. Corroway readily. "We'd better do something else. It's always so difficult to find three seats together for the better films."

"I'll match you to see who sits with her," offered Dave, and grinned.

Said Mr. Corroway stiffly, "I can scarcely picture myself tossing a coin for the company of a gentlewoman."

"You tell 'em," remarked Dave. But now abruptly he stood up. He smiled a smile of his own. "As a matter of fact," he said, "I wouldn't be able to stay this evening anyway, Janey. You know that brief I told you about? Well, I've got to jam ahead on it, that's all. So you two run along to the show."

JANE'S mother and father were reading in the living room. Dave, who had gone to school with Jane and grown up on the same street, was no novelty in the Preslin household. Mrs. Preslin merely smiled in a motherly sort of way and said,

"Want to sit down, David?"

Mr. Preslin grunted, "Make yourself comfortable, boy."

The clock ticked, and pages rustled gently for perhaps five minutes. It was Mrs. Preslin who ultimately spoke.

"I don't see," she observed idly, "I just don't see what Janey can see in that man."

"Me either," snapped Dave.

Said Mr. Preslin, "What's your idea about him, David?"

"He's a wet smack, that's my idea."

"Of course," and now Jane's father nodded ruminatively, "you must remember, David, that our friend Corroway has one quality which puts, let's say, the rest of us at a great disadvantage. He's probably making more money than I am, and certainly more than you are. I'm willing to wager it was a woman who first inspired the saying, 'Nothing succeeds like success.' Women have a natural affinity for men who can make two dollars sprout where one sprouted before."

Dave colored. "I suppose," he said moodily, "I suppose that puts it up to me to make a million dollars or something. Is that what you're driving at?"

"Not necessarily a million, David. Anyway I wasn't being personal. I was merely airing a little of my philosophy."

Said the boy grimly, "You and I might get together, Mr. Preslin, and figure out how to make that million."

How the idea of the hairpin came to Dave, he never exactly knew. Suddenly the idea was there in his mind, full-fledged and adult. And the possibilities of it staggered him. If only the thing were workable—whew!

He was sitting in his own room at the plain pine table which served him as a desk. His mother was asleep. The house was quiet. Undoubtedly Jane and Ellison Corroway were still at the movies. But somehow it seemed late, for the evening had dragged on and on through ages.

Dave had fiddled and yawned and thought about many things in general and about Jane in particular, and he had thought about trying to invent something —and now, out of a clear sky, the invention had come to him.

You simply took a hairpin and magnetized it; that was all. If the two poles or ends of an ordinary horseshoe magnet — the north and south, or positive and negative poles. Dave remembered from his physics — if the two poles of a magnet would attract each others, through the medium of a little bar of iron that touched both of them, why wouldn't they attract each other if the magnet was flexible, as a hairpin was? And if they would attract each other, then all a woman would have to do would be to stick such a hairpin into her hair and simply touch the ends of it together after it was in place. The ends would stick to each other by magnetic attraction, and the hairpin would stay where it was meant to be until its wearer was ready to take it out, when a light little tug would separate the ends and make it just like an ordinary hairpin again.

Why, the idea was stupendous! It wasn't merely a new kind of hairpin; it was the ultimate hairpin, the only hairpin any woman would want to be bothered with.

THE next few days were utterly bewildering to David Garnsey, the more so because everything seemed to be coming out exactly the way it ought to come out in a book or in a movie. The first thing he did next morning was to consult with Mr. Lawrence, his employer, who proved interested but conservative.

"Have the patent searched first," the older man advised. "That'll let you know if the idea is patentable, and at the same time it will give you priority over anybody else who might try to steal the idea from you, if you talk about it."

Dave said firmly, "I'll never say a word about it."

"How are you going to try the idea out then? You haven't got the facilities to do it yourself. You'll have to go to an electrical laboratory and have tests made."

"That's right." Dave's face was solemn.

"I'll tell you what," suggested Mr. Lawrence. "I'll call up Jenkins in Washington on long distance. He represents us there, you know. He can have the search crowded through and at the same time arrange to protect your interests."

It was four days later that Jenkins' report came in, and both Dave and Mr. Lawrence gasped. The field on magnetic hairpins seemed to be absolutely clear. No one had ever asked for any such patent; up to now, apparently, no human being had ever thought of the idea.

"But it's so simple," was all Dave could say. "If it's any good, why hasn't somebody thought of it?"

"Maybe it's not any good," said Mr. Lawrence.

"The principle's sound," Dave said. "I've been reading books in the library."

Mr. Lawrence merely said in a fatherly way: "If it works, boy, you're a multi-millionaire for life. And all I ask is for you to let me be your counsel."

With his heart in his mouth Dave took train to the State University. There in the experimental electrical laboratory he received his second great shock, so much of a shock that it seemed unbelievable. Not only was his principle sound, but the idea worked.

Two instructors, deeply interested and pledged to secrecy, led Dave into a great room filled with machines which meant nothing to him. Upon a simple little table they cut up pieces of wire of various weights and thicknesses and tensile strengths and bent them carefully into hairpin shape. One by one these were fed into a machine that looked something like an electric motor but wasn't. One of the instructors would throw a switch and momentarily the machine would buzz. The third home-made hairpin that came out of this machine came out with a great willingness to hold its ends together. The seventh, slightly less stiff, stuck beautifully.

One of the instructors said, "Merciful heavens, this is history!"

The other smiled a crooked smile. "It's more than history," he remarked; "it's futurity."

Dave said warmly: "Don't think for a minute that I'll forget either of you. If it makes money, you're both in on the deal."

They tested more hairpins like the seventh, delving into the recesses of the laboratory storeroom for other strengths and calibers of wire. The twenty-fourth test was even more satisfactory.

"Let's make up a package," Dave said. "You know, the way they come in stores. Anyway, I've seen girls buy 'em enough." By girls he meant Jane, but this he neglected to explain to the two instructors. "I'd like to take a package of them back," he went on. "We could snap them together with a rubber band, and I could paste a little piece of paper around them afterward to make them look fancier. You see," and now he became thoughtful, "I suppose I've got to raise money, because I haven't a cent. That means forming a company and selling stock and everything. That's why I want a few sample hairpins to start with, and then if I happened to need more—"

"You just call either of us on the phone," the instructors chorused.

"Is there a phone around here, by the way?" Dave inquired. "I want to tell the news to Mr. Lawrence. He's my boss, the one I told you about who helped me to get the patent applied for. He's a prince."

In the telephone booth Dave waited nervously. Never before had he possessed news like this to impart to anybody. And Mr. Lawrence, who had been so interested and so loyal, was the one to hear it first.

Mr. Lawrence's voice sounded so strange that Dave scarcely recognized it. And it seemed queer that he wasn't more enthusiastic over the news; that is, it seemed queer until Dave at last began to comprehend what the older man was trying to say. It was only then that Dave stopped talking and began to listen.

The news was about Dave's mother. Quite suddenly, early that afternoon, she had complained of pain; her old trouble but infinitely more acute. Dr. Holden, after examining her, had called a two consultants, Dr. Reamish and Dr. Spizelli. She was resting comfortably now, but Dave had better come home at once. The night nurse would be there to tell him all the details.

IF THE previous days had been thrilling for David Garnsey, the next two days were like a nightmare. His mother, plainly, was seriously ill. In the right-hand pocket of his coat rested the little package of magnetized hairpins, but these, for the moment, he had forgotten. The thing now was to get his mother well.

But though Dave was able to forget the hairpin idea, Mr. Lawrence was not. Mr. Lawrence said kindly:

"You're going to need money for all these hospital and doctors' bills, Dave. What I think is that you'd better draw up incorporation papers at once—I'll help you with that — and start out after your capital immediately. First, of course, we'll get your patent applied for in regular form, but you're protected in the meantime. The thing you need now is quick money—something you can borrow on."

Dave said, "But I don't want to borrow."

Said Mr. Lawrence, "Of course, you can sell out part of your interest in the hairpin, but that would be like killing the goose that's about to lay a golden egg."

Dave said stubbornly, "I'd rather sell than borrow."

"Well, son, we'll work out a plan. If I had any money, which you know I haven't, I'd be glad to buy in, but as it is I'm afraid we've got to go outside for capital. But that won't be too difficult, even in these hard times, if we make it a local affair—I mean if we plan to manufacture the hairpins in town and keep the profits here. The banks will be kindly anyway, and there are always a few people — you'd be surprised — who have money saved up."

And now abruptly Mr. Lawrence laughed. "By gosh," he said, "I haven't even seen one of the darned hairpins yet. Have you got one around anywhere — I mean one that really works?"

"You bet," Dave answered. He pulled the package from his pocket, carefully removed a hairpin from the little sheaf of bent wires.

Mr. Lawrence touched the two end together and was properly amazed.

IT WAS five days later that Mr. Ellison Corroway sought out Dave at his office. After a deal of fencing Mr. Corroway came to the point. He drew a checkbook from his pocket, smacked it upon Dave's desk, and smiled his suavest smile. What he said was,

"Dave, you may not know it, but I'm your friend."

"Yeah?"

"Well, I am."

"That's okay with me," said Dave non-committally.

"I hear," said Mr. Corroway, "I hear you're in a hole."

"Isn't that my business?" Dave inquired.

"Not if I can help you out."

Dave said, "I don't want to borrow any money, if that's what you're driving at."

"You won't have to," Mr. Corroway smiled again. "I'm prepared to offer something for, let's say, half your share in the hairpin business."

"You can buy in on the preferred stock," Dave informed him.

"I don't want that. I want in on the common."

"Oh!"

Mr. Corroway said deliberately, "I'm prepared to offer you a thousand dollars, all cash."

"For what?"

"For half your interest in the Garnsey Magnetic Hairpin."

Now it was Dave who smiled. He pointed out that his interest, at the moment, was worth about forty-five thousand in cash and untold sums in possibilities.

"Try and get it!" murmured Ellison Corroway, putting away his checkbook.

BUT a week later Dave was much less sure. His mother's operation was imminent. The hospital bill was about four hundred dollars, and that meant either borrowing or getting money somehow.

It was then again that Ellison Corroway dropped into Dave's office.

Mr. Corroway said, smiling his own smile, "My offer still holds good."

"Not with me," said Dave.

Mr. Corroway said slowly, "I'll give you ten thousand for half your interest."

Ten thousand! That was money. Big money. "Nothing doing," said Dave.

"I'll give you fifteen; not a cent more."

"Nothing doing," said Dave.

But he did need money. So about twenty minutes later David Garnsey, slightly ashamed of himself and considerably elated at the same time, said "Yes," and said further that he would accept Ellison Corroway's certified check for $22,500 — which was exactly half what Dave considered his own interest to be worth, in cash.

That evening he dropped in to see Jane. Mr. Corroway, of course, was there. He slapped Dave jovially upon the shoulder and said,

"No hard feelings, I hope?"

"About what?" Dave said.

"About the little deal. Well, I'm glad you realize business [illegible]"

"I'm [illegible] don't get you," said [illegible].

Now it was Jane who spoke. She said slowly, "I'm afraid I do." And then she said, even more slowly, "I told you I had a date with Dave, Ellison."

THAT surprised Dave slightly, since he had no date at all. But after Ellison Corroway had gone Jane began to boil. Mr. Corroway, it seemed, had been boasting a little. What he had put over was a perfectly good business deal. Hearing of the hairpins he had rushed at once to the National-International hairpin people, who had hurriedly checked the facts and then authorized him, as a starter toward control of the invention, to buy out half the inventor's interest, Mr. Corroway to pocket a cool quarter of anything he manged to save under fifty thousand dollars.

"Why, he just cheated you out of thousands and thousands," insisted Jane.

"That isn't cheating necessarily," said Dave defensively. "I mean—well, you know, the way he said — that business is business."

"You're dumb," said Jane. She said it with decision.

But Dave smiled a slow smile. "As long as I've got these babies I'm not dumb." He drew the package of hairpins from his pocket. "Want a couple," he asked.

Mr. Corroway slapped Dave jovially upon the shoulder and said, "No hard feelings, I hope?"

"MILLION DOLLAR HAIRPIN" 8-27

"Sure. If they're worth fifty thousand, they're good enough for me."

Dave handed her two of them, and Jane put them in her hair.

There were more words, a good many more words. Presently, as was her habit, Jane tossed her head. The hair that was too short to be long and too long to be short flopped out sidewise, and Jane said automatically, "Oh, bother! I forgot."

But Dave merely listened with a strange expression upon his face, and then he looked steadfastly at the floor.

"Did you take the old ones out?" he asked.

"Of course, I did."

"Well, there's two of 'em down there, just the way there used to be."

"Down where?"

"On the floor," said Dave.

He bent wearily and picked the two hairpins up. He examined them, re-examined them. "Yes," he said at length, "they're ours, all right."

Now he touched the ends together, first of one and then of the other. Nothing happened. The ends touched and sprang apart. When at last Dave spoke, his voice sounded raspy.

"Something's wrong," he said. "The magnetism seems to be gone."

"It can't be," said Jane.

"Well, whether it can be or not, it is."

They faced each other, her eyes large and questioning, his eyes suddenly bleak.

"They don't stick in," he said, as if speaking to himself.

"But they did, Dave."

"Yes, but they don't." The color in his cheeks drained visibly away. He said again dully, "Something's wrong, all right."

"You mean—?"

"I don't know what I mean. Only if they don't stay in a person's hair they're a flop. No good, that's all. They ought to stay in."

AGAIN and fruitlessly Dave experimented with the hairpins. He stared at them. Then abruptly he began to laugh. He started laughing jerkily, but presently he was laughing uproariously, and slapping his knee.

"You mean Ellison Corroway?" Jane asked him.

"Ellison Corroway in person," Dave agreed. "Did he say business was business? Well, flop or no flop, I've got his twenty-two thousand, and I've spent plenty of it already. That's velvet anyway—and a good lesson to anybody just never to believe an inventor." And again Dave laughed.

"Stop laughing that way," Jane commanded sharply.

"Can't I laugh if I want to?"

"No, you can't — not that way."

"Why not?"

Jane tossed her head. "I suppose," she said haughtily, "I suppose you think I cared about your old millions!"

"I could use a couple," said Dave.

"So could I. So could anybody. But do you think I care?"

Dave looked at her then. He looked at her, and he kept on looking. And then all at once he had her in his arms, and she was clinging close, and they held so; and the entire firmament and all of creation revolved slowly around the two of them, but neither Dave nor Jane knew it, because each of them was too busy discovering that even if you've kissed a person for years, it can suddenly become different and bewildering and utterly heavenly.

And when she had her first chance, Jane said: "Don't feel badly, Dave. Your idea may not have been any good anyway, because I've heard electricity makes hair all funny and stiff. Besides, if you want a hairpin to stay in [illegible] took one of the ends of one of the hairpins and twisted it firmly into a twist that was not unlike that of a corkscrew. "Look," she chanted triumphantly and clicked the ends together. The straight end caught in the twist, [illegible]

Of course everybody knows about the hairpin. It is called the Garnsey Hairpin because Jane was firm in maintaining that the whole hairpin idea came from Dave and that anyway the name Garnsey was going to be hers for a long, long time.

It took Dave and the electrical force of the State University two whole days to determine, with some sadness, that while the magnetic hairpins would hold their magnetism when bunched together, the bulk of any single hairpin, detached from the rest, was too small to hold it for more than a few minutes. There did not seem to be a sensible, scientific reason for this fact, but fact it proved. The magnetic hairpin, in short, was not a magnetic hairpin. The ends would not stick together.

"But since we're going to," said Jane to Dave, "what does it really matter?"
